

The WEEK

By A. M. Brayton

FINISHING a story from Mt. Horsh, or Argyle, or somewhere, the copy reader exclaimed:

"This is the eggthrowingest campaign I ever saw!"

There has been too much lying, too much exaggeration, too much eggthrowing, and too much of many things that are not argument in the campaign, but truth and argument have not been entirely excluded, and level-headed voters are probably fairly well informed as the campaign closes.

There was a healthy response to the notice that women, having won their seventy years' battle for the ballot, might prepare themselves for the primary by registering August 31. The turnout was all that could have been expected, and it indicates that women are definitely interested in the campaign issues. Broadly their motives will be those found in the home, having to do with standards of life and quality of citizenship, and we may well expect that they will enter the primary with very clearly defined notions of the matters of public policy and fair play which are involved.

An attempt to defeat the suffrage amendment by voting reconsideration after the amendment had been officially promulgated by the secretary of state was made during the week by the Tennessee legislature. That less than a majority of the legislature supported reconsideration stamps the coup as but another trick of a beaten minority. No doubt the government will proceed upon the expectation that in due time the United States supreme court will dispose of the matter in a few well-chosen words.

Terao Ikeda, counselor of the Japanese ministry, is consulting the United States department of justice upon the ways and means it has found most effective in stamping out profiteering. When properly advised by Mr. Palmer, Mr. Ikeda will doubtless return to Japan and take a yen away from a peddler.

The appointment of Burr W. Jones to membership on the supreme bench in Wisconsin gives one a comfortable feeling. The conflict between dollar-headed reactionaries and jazz radicals sometimes leaves the average citizen doubtful of his own sense of proportion, and prepared to expect almost anything but intelligence and balanced citizenship to win recognition. And so when a serene scholar, one who typifies the highest standards of his profession and the loftiest ideals of his generation, is called upon to perform high public service, one feels a consoling sense of reassurance. Hon. Burr W. Jones is a broad man, sound, just and discriminating. He possesses that dignity which comes of a judicial temperament, unusual strength, coupled with the kindly outlook of him who understands his fellow men. The state honors any man upon whom it confers a seat in its highest tribunal; in his acceptance of the trust Mr. Jones honors Wisconsin.

The Poles seem winning another military advantage. No doubt this will be reflected in retarded peace negotiations. Meanwhile Trotsky has ordered the mobilization of all Russians between the ages of nineteen and fifty years. Should he get five per cent results from this call he would have enough men to whip Poland though armed only with clubs and stones. Victories are dangerous to the Poles. Every step which they win into Russia brings them nearer to disaster. Scattered equidistant over Russian territory the men of the Polish army might wander for years without one of them meeting another. Poland should avail itself of the first honorable peace terms it can secure.

The wets and dries are having it out rather lustily, endorsing and blacklisting, and bandying accusations. All of which means nothing much. The real issue is more interesting as a problem in psychology than as an issue in practical politics. The eighteenth amendment is the law of the land. Should ever a majority in congress attempt an interpretation of "intoxicating" in defiance of scientific fact, the supreme court would make short work of the enterprise. "Light wine" is a mere phrase, for within the limitations sketched by the court it would not be wine at all, but vinegar. Meanwhile asylums and jails are experiencing a business depression.

Olin's left cheek was broken. He was an on-looker and was standing a short distance from the batsman. He is expected to recover.

HAYS DELIBERATELY
LIED TO COMMITTEE
SAYS GOVERNOR COXChallenges G. O. P. Chairman's
Statement that Republicans
Had no QuotaBRANDS OPPONENT AS A
REACTIONARY CANDIDATECox to Visit Minnesota State Fair on Monday

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 4.—A charge that Will H. Hays, republican national chairman, had deliberately perpetrated a falsehood under oath at Chicago in the senate committee investigation of republican contributions was made here today by Governor Cox, the democratic presidential candidate.

Governor Cox's charge, the culmination of bitter partisan controversy over campaign financing, was delivered at the state fair grounds this afternoon during one of seven speeches the democratic nominee made during the day's tour of Wisconsin.

Existence of the alleged republican "quota" of $3,145,000 for 51 metropolitan cities, charged by Governor Cox at Pittsburgh was the basis of today's assertion by the governor.

"Mr. Hays has denied that there is any quota," said the governor.

"I charge that there is a quota. I charge, furthermore, that Mr. Hays deliberately perpetrated a falsehood under oath at Chicago when he said there was not a quota."

Governor Cox followed this declaration with an assertion that a conference arranged today at Marion, Ohio, by Senator Harding, his republican opponent, with members of the ways and means, or finance committee, had been postponed because the governor declared he had "exposed this plot to buy the presidency of the United States."

The republican war chest and the League of Nations formed the major part of nearly all of Governor Cox's five addresses here today. He closed his visit here tonight with a public address at Plunkinton hotel auditorium and a fraternal address to brother Elks here for a carnival.

The governor late tonight left for Chicago, where he will rest over Sunday and on Monday visit the Twin Cities and make several addresses, including one at the Minnesota State fair.

Besides his charges against Mr. Hays, Governor Cox in most of his speeches here, flayed the senate oligarchy, criticized Harding as "reactionary," and declared that, if his campaign fund charges were true, Fred W. Upham, republican treasurer, should be ousted by Chairman Hays.

TILDEN AND JOHNSTON
IN TENNIS FINALS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—William M. Johnston, playing through holder of the title of the all-comers singles, and William T. Tilden II, winner at Wimbledon, won their places in the final of the thirty-ninth national championship match tournament on the turf of the West Side Tennis club here today. Each accomplished his victory in the semifinals, his own characteristic methods, which afforded the gallery an exemplification of the two distinct types of tennis.

The final for the championship, with William Johnston holding two legs on the trophy, will be played on Monday.

IMPORTS OF FOODSTUFFS
INCREASED HALF BILLION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Foodstuff imports for the seven months' period ending with July showed an increase in value of more than half a billion dollars over imports for the same period last year, according to department of commerce figures. Export foodstuffs for the same period showed a decrease of approximately half a billion dollars from the 1919 business. Total foodstuff imports, both crude and manufactured for the seven months' period of 1920, were valued at $1,157,000,000, as against $606,000,000 in 1919. Exports for 1920 were $1,168,000,000 as against $1,687,000,000.

WOMEN IN THREE STATES MAY BE UNABLE TO VOTE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Louisiana, New Jersey and Mississippi are the only states in which women may find themselves unable to vote in the coming general elections, according to suffrage leaders here.

Attorney General Robertson of Mississippi has written the National Woman's party headquarters here that the state constitution requirement of registration at least four months prior to an election precluded any hope of women voting in that state. Party leaders declared today they had received no replies from the attorney general of Louisiana and New Jersey to requests regarding the status of women voters and accordingly the situation was in doubt in those states.

from Effects of Chlorine Gas

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 4.—The thirty-seven members of the crew of the S-5, snatched from death by the narrowest margin from the sunken submarine early yesterday morning, arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard tonight on the destroyer Bidle. They were transferred from the battleship Ohio during the afternoon.

Unofficial reports were to the effect that the men are suffering more or less from the chlorine gas they inhaled while only the stem of the vessel was above the surface of the water.

Lieutenant Commander Charles M. Cooke, Jr., commander of the S-5, is still aboard the Ohio where, it is understood, a naval court of inquiry is being held.

It was unofficially reported today the S-5 again broke away from the battleship Ohio, which was towing her, and sank in 150 feet of water, some distance off the Delaware capes.

DANIELS APPROVES
FIVE PER CENT RAISE
FOR NAVY WORKERSMore than a Quarter Million
Employees Affected by New Order

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—A wage increase of five per cent was awarded all classes of civil employees in the naval establishment under a new pay schedule approved today by Secretary Daniels and which will go into effect "on the nearest payday to September 15."

The increase, based on the difference in the advance in cost of living and the congressional bonus authorized since the last readjustment of wages a year and a half ago, affects more than 288,000 naval employees.

Several classes of employees, including practically all the clerical forces and four mercantile trades, will receive increases considerably above the general five per cent advance through a readjustment of the entire wage schedule to correct inequalities in the present scale. The new schedule will be announced early next week. Secretary Daniels said.

One important feature is the reduction of Saturday working hours to four.

Into Reasons for Strike

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 4.—Gov. Kilby today telegraphed an appeal to J. B. Kennamer, president of the Alabama district of the United Mine Workers of America, asking that the strike of bituminous miners ordered in this state by the national organization be held up pending an investigation. The governor appointed a commission headed by Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University of Alabama, to inquire into the difference existing between miners and operators.

All of the miners in southern districts were authorized to strike immediately, under terms of an order issued this week by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, which alleged that mine owners had failed to comply with the award of President Wilson's coal commission.

Deny Governor's Request
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 4.—J. B. Kennamer, president of the Alabama division, United Mine Workers of America, stated tonight that he would not grant Governor Kilby's request to hold the strike order in abeyance, declaring that it was too late to do so, even if he were so inclined. He declared that many miners in the Alabama coal fields had already ceased work, and that many locals not heretofore on strike had joined the walkout during the day.

CENSUS

Vermont First State Counted in 1920 Census to Show Decrease in Population.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Vermont is the first state counted thus far in the 1920 census to show a loss of population in the last ten years.

Figures announced by the census bureau tonight gave Vermont a total population of 352,421, a decrease of 3,535, or minus 1.0 per cent, as compared with 1910.

There was nothing aside from the bare figures to indicate the cause of the decrease. Ten years ago Vermont, ranking then as the forty-second state, showed a gain of 12,315, or 3.6 per cent over 1900.

State of Vermont, 352,421, decrease 3,535, or minus 1.0 per cent.

Kent county, Michigan, containing Grand Rapids, 183,041; increase 23,896, or 15.0 per cent.

GAS MADE FROM

SUITED TO MOTORS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Gas which possesses explosive qualities sufficient to drive an automobile and which may also be used for purposes of illumination is being produced at the Arlington, Va., experimental farm of the department of agriculture from the destructive distillation of ordinary field straw.

In making this announcement tonight, experts of the department added that "the possibilities of straw gas are not yet fully determined."

A special force has been detailed to the Arlington station to continue the tests with various straws and to work out a model plant for the distillation of the gas.

of Chairman

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 4.—Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, tonight declared that "there would be no fight on Monday between Dempsey and Billy Miske unless Jim Dougherty of Philadelphia referees the bout." His statement followed the announcement of Chairman Bigler of the state boxing commission that Dougherty could not referee because he was not licensed in Michigan.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the fight, later said that he had arranged a conference between the fighters' managers and Bigler for tomorrow and that "there was every indication that the matter would be smoothed over."

"There is no chance of the fight being called off," Fitzsimmons said. "Kearns wants Dougherty to referee and Dougherty is also acceptable to Miske and his manager, but Chairman Bigler feels that a Michigan man ought to be chosen. The whole affair will be settled amicably."

at All

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 4.—Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Roosevelt today canceled a speaking engagement at the Hamilton club because, he said, "he could not speak in Chicago without saying what he thought of Mayor William Hale Thompson" and the republican national committee had requested him "not to take sides in the state factional primary fight."

The late Theodore Roosevelt once refused to speak at the same club because William Lorimer was on the list of invited guests, but Lorimer's invitation was withdrawn and Roosevelt spoke.

My position in regard to the Illinois primary fight is well known," said Lieutenant Colonel Roosevelt in explanation of the canceled engagement. "The national committee wanted to keep out of factional fights, so they requested me not to speak in Illinois unless I could ignore the primary fight, I couldn't do that."

JAGUAR ESCAPES FROM CAGE AT STATE FAIR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 4.—While a crowd of 25,000 persons was absorbed in watching airplane stunts at the State Fair here today, a jaguar appearing in one of the trained animal acts, escaped from its cage just across the race track.

Running a short distance, the animal sought shelter beneath a platform where it was located by the trainer and enticed back into a cage by the trainer's imitation of a jaguar kitten's cries.

Although the escape and recapture were effected within full view of the crowd, scarcely a dozen persons were aware of the incident.

REMEMBER WAR IS
MRS. THOMPSON'S
APPEAL TO WOMENHead of Women's Organization
Urges Support of Those Who Fought for AmericaSAYS ANTI-WAR FORCES
ARE ATTACKING VETERANSPlatforms Complaint Against Winning War, She Declares

Declaring that "our fight is at the ballot-box," Mrs. E. C. Thompson of this city, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the state council of defense during the war and recently appointed by the governor as executive secretary of the Inter-Departmental Committee on Community Councils today issued an appeal to the women voters of Wisconsin to remember war issues in the coming elections.

Heads Big Organization
The Inter-Departmental Committee of which Mrs. Thompson is the head is the peace-time organization for community welfare which grew out of the women's committees of the county councils of defense. It has local organizations involving thousands of women in most of the counties of the state, and at the last legislative session obtained the passage of laws establishing a Children's Bureau in the state, requiring a county nurse for each county, additional child labor legislation and favored the eight hour law and other constructive measures.

Not in Party Politics
The community councils take no part in partisan politics. Mrs. Thompson is allied with no party personally and was not a suffragist before the ratification of the 19th amendment.

Mrs. Thompson's statement said: "The women of Wisconsin: 'The women of America have had a hard two years. War came to us. We did not want it, but we met it, and I believe we can modestly say that we met it bravely.'"

"Much has been said of what was given for the war. Eighty thousand women of Wisconsin gave and sacrificed for the same principles for which Wisconsin boys gave themselves."

"We women stayed at home and held the second line of defense. Our first and only thought was to minimize their discomfort and peril, and by every means at our command to lend them a helping hand. They were hard years of deprivation and sacrifice and labor, but we gave all freely, eagerly, for we were determined that the just fight which our men and boys had undertaken should be won, and our pride in their daring spurred us on to fresh endeavors from day to day."

"But not everybody helped. Some there were, even in public life, whose conduct was a source of discouragement and obstruction. While our boys fought, and our women worked, they were preparing to take advantage of the unrest and dissatisfaction which follow every war. They had no time to work or serve, they were too busy finding fault."

"Today they are going to the polls on the issue they were manufacturing while our boys fought and we toiled for their success. Their platforms are a complaint against every need we plied, every hour we worked, every dollar we raised. Their slates contain the names of not a single returned soldier. They have not recognized the war service of a single patriot. Nor have they given place to any man whose time was too occupied in winning the war to quarrel with the war conditions which, alike, we all suffered unconsciously."

Attack Soldiers

"On the other hand they are attacking by every means and method at their command such soldier candidates as have dared enter politics, and all men and statesmen who dropped other issues to stand by the country when it was grappling with a foreign foe. Their program is to justify their position, and to condemn ours, and they have elected to make their vindication as complete as they would make our condemnation complete by deliberately defeating every man who carried the arms of America in the war."

"Were we women right? Have we given unselfishly to a good cause? Do we agree that defeat at the polls is a just reward to the men we sent out with our blessings and our tears? Do we stand today for America and the sons and brothers we sent to fight her battles, just as we stood during the hard years when we strove and prayed and fearfully scanned each new casualty list?"

Means Defects of Veterans
"If we women fail at the polls Sept. 7, our soldiers and patriots who never know defeat on foreign soil may go down to defeat at the hands of men who do not scruple to win political prestige by contemptuously trampling upon the aspirations of the survivors of the war."

"I am glad that women come first to the polls in the full power of American citizenship, at a time like this. It is a wonderful opportunity for the motherhood, wifehood and sisterhood of Wisconsin. Polish women, rifles in hand are standing in the trenches, facing the outlaw hordes who have desecrated the word 'home' in half of Europe. Our fight is at the ballot box."

NEW DEPARTMENTS
AND CHANGES MARK
OPENING OF SCHOOLAll Arrangements Completed by Board of Education for Ring of Bell TuesdayCHANGES ARE NECESSITATED
BY BUILDING NEW SCHOOLSTransfers of Grades and Location of Barracks Announced

(By Supt. B. E. McCormick)
When the school boys and girls of the city respond to the "first bell" on Tuesday, they will be greeted in most cases by walls and desks that fairly reflect cleanliness. For two and a half months, a crew of a dozen or more men and women have been going through the buildings, scrubbing, cleaning, varnishing, painting, and decorating. Hundreds of desks have been re-finished and re-varnished, the walls in all the buildings have been cleaned, the windows washed, the roofs repaired, and in many cases, paint and calamine have been used with telling effect.

Hamilton School

The entire Hamilton building has been re-decorated from top to bottom, the walls being tinted a cream color and the woodwork being varnished throughout. This has kept a crew of five or six men busy for the whole season.

Logan School

At the Logan school, a barrack has been erected near the south entrance of the building to take care of the large junior high school enrollment. The building will serve as a classroom for an extra teacher who has been provided for that building this year.

Washburn School

At the Washburn school, the old building has been cleaned as well as it can be. In order to make room for the two classes that were moved out of the Longfellow building last spring at the time of the accident, it was necessary to remove the domestic science equipment from the room which it has occupied heretofore, and substitute seats and desks. It is planned to transfer the equipment to the Washington school, where it will be installed in due time. To also relieve one of the serious conditions that now exist at the Washburn school, the board of education has under consideration a plan for the erection of an outside toilet room adjacent to the present building which will guarantee sanitation which does not exist in the present structure. Effort is being made to hasten the construction of this building, which it is planned, will not only serve the present year, but also during the construction of the new building.

Hogan School

The new barracks erected to house the pupils of the Hogan district are undergoing final touches. Six of the eight rooms of the Hogan school will be housed in the barracks, each barrack accommodating two rooms. The walls of the buildings are made of novelty drop siding outside and they are lined with plaster board which is fully a half inch thick. The floors are double floors with a lining of paper, and the bases of the buildings have been sheathed with paper and siding. The rooms will be equipped with a modern heater with cold air intakes and foul air exhaust pipes, and the authorities believe that they will be entirely comfortable. They are so constructed that they comply with the building code insofar as the window space to the floor area is concerned.

All of the plumbing at the building has been housed in a single barrack, each side being furnished with a furnace to prevent freezing during the winter time.

The kindergarten of the Hogan district will be housed in the old gymnasium in the high school building. A vacant room at the Webster building will be used to take care of a portion of the Hogan school children, the boundary line between the Webster and the Hogan districts being changed temporarily. All children on Adams street, or south of it, will be asked to go to the Webster school this year. This includes children on Adams street east of the State Road Coulee road. This change in the boundary line, as suggested before, will take care of the equivalent of one room, which has heretofore been housed at the Hogan school. At the same time, the distance to the Webster school for these children is about the same that they would be required to travel if they were to attend the Hogan school. Parents living in this particular section of the district should take notice of this change.

In addition to new physical equipment, students will be greeted by new books which have been purchased to replace the worn-out ones of last year, new papers and supplies, quantities of which have been purchased during the summer and allotted to the various schools in the city.

Experiment is Success

Last year the board of education employed a supervisor of the lower grades. It was the first experience of the local school system, and the results obtained, in the opinion of

THREE AMERICAN PLANES ENTERED IN BENNETT RACE

U. S. Planes of Original Design and Smaller and Faster than Any Other is Claim

PLANES NAMED AFTER CURTISS, WRIGHT AND THE U. S. ARMY

Specially Designed for Airplane Classic in France

NEW YORK—Original American design, high power, small size and greater speed than any recorded aeroplanical performance of the past, are features which the designers say are possessed by three airplanes enroute to Paris to represent America in the Gordon Bennett cup races beginning September 27.

Wright, Curtiss and the United States army, all pioneers in the conquest of the air are the names which will be painted on the fuselages of the three American racers, each chosen for the promise it held out to bring back the trophy which has been in France since 1913.

Upon these three entrants America pins her hope of ever again possessing the coveted cup, which will become the permanent property of France if she wins again this year. The race will be held at Etampes, near Paris, over a circular course of 300 kilometers (186.3 miles). The prizes include 10,000 francs offered by the French government and the Gordon Bennett cup, valued at $2,500.

Two of the three American machines are monoplanes, while the army contestant, though of miniature proportions, is a biplane. All three have been especially designed for the race, including special motors and devices to increase speed and endurance. It is said to be the opinion of flying experts that the winners of this race must make over 200 miles an hour.

In the special Curtiss machine the pilot's seat is far back on the fuselage, two-thirds the distance from nose to tail. The propeller is short and stubby with a streamlined hub. Unusually thick wings are supported on either side by a single thick strut extending to the hub of the landing wheel. The bird cage radiators are slung on either side of the motor. The power plant is a 12-cylinder, 400 horsepower motor.

The chief peculiarities of the Wright entry are the wings, which are of three-ply wood veneer instead of the usual fabric covered frames, and an undercarriage which folds into the fuselage when the machine is in flight, thus reducing wind resistance and resulting in a proportionate increase in speed. The mechanical action necessary to fold up the undercarriage also flattens out the wings into racing form, providing a wide variation between minimum and maximum speeds, the thicker wing being used for landing and taking off. Power is furnished by a 250 horsepower motor of special design.

The air service racer is still something of a mystery. It was designed and built at McCook field, the army experimental station by designers of the Liberty motor. The motor is of 500 horsepower.

Pilots of the three machines are Roland Rohls, former holder of the world's altitude record, Captain Rudolph Schroeder, the present title holder, and Howard Rinehart.

"OO-LA-LA" SKIRTS MAKE COPS HAPPY

SPOKANE—"Believe me," says Sergeant Hinton, "since the newspapers came out with the news that skirts are to be more oo-la-la this fall, I've had more cops come around and try to horn in on the traffic squad than you could shake a stick at. Some of 'em are respectable married men, too." And one traffic cop declared "just give me a foot-warming pad and I'll be happy to perch in my intersection all winter."

COMPARED WITH THE FACTS

MR. F. A. Boone, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, attacked the Esch-Cummins bill at the Riverside park meeting Friday night at which he opposed the nomination of Congressman Esch and Senator Lenroot. His ammunition was the same that the opponents of Esch and Lenroot have been using throughout their discussion of the new transportation act. It consisted of assertions as to what is in the bill, largely unsupported by proof. We propose in this editorial to submit certain of his statements, about which was woven the fabric of his argument, to the test of comparison with the actual text of the Esch bill, that citizens may assay them for truth and reliability.

Mr. Boone said:
"The cars can rot and the rails rust but the positive five and one-half percent guarantee goes on just the same."
He was repeating the claim made by the opponents of Esch and Lenroot that the Esch-Cummins bill guarantees the owners of the railroads a return of five and one-half percent on their investment. Is the charge substantiated by the bill? Here is the part of the bill dealing with the matter referred to:

Sec. 422 (2): In the exercise of its power to prescribe just and reasonable rates the commission shall initiate, modify, establish or adjust such rates so that carriers as a whole . . . (Note that this restricts the combined income of ALL railroads; individual roads may make less than the permitted rate, or even lose money, but the government makes up no deficiencies—Editor) will, under honest, efficient and economical management . . . earn an aggregate annual net railway operating income equal, as nearly as may be, to a fair return upon the aggregate value of the railway property of such carriers held for and used in the service of transportation."

If the railroads "let the cars rot and the rails rust", under the foregoing section, they pay for the neglect themselves. Can you read the provision any other way? The commission is ordered to fix a rate whereby "honest, efficient and economical management" will earn a fair return upon the "aggregate value" of the roads. Does anyone suppose that allowing the cars to rot and the rails to rust could ever be considered that "honest, efficient and economical management" which is the indispensable factor in the law orders the commission to consider in fixing rates?

How about the "positive five and one-half percent guarantee" to the owners? The bill says in the paragraph immediately following that quoted above:

"The commission shall from time to time determine and make public what percentage of such aggregate property value constitutes a fair return thereon . . . Provided, that during the two years beginning March 1, 1920, the Commission shall take as a fair return a sum equal to five and one-half percent of such aggregate value. . . (an additional half percent may be added if the commission thinks necessary, but the additional is to be used only for improvements.)"

That does not guarantee anything. It says that the commission shall fix a fair rate of return on the aggregate value of the roads, and instructs the commission to consider five and one-half percent a fair return until 1922. Thereafter the commission is empowered to reduce or increase the rate, as necessary. But—this is important—the section of the bill first quoted—Section 422 (2)—provides expressly that the rate of return is not to be fixed for each individual road, but for all the roads in each section of the country as a whole. The combined profit of all the roads in the east, for instance, can be but five and one-half percent of their "aggregate value". Some roads will earn less, depending on how well they are managed, how good business is, etc. THE GOVERNMENT DOES NOT MAKE UP THE DIFFERENCE. If they lose money, the government does not contribute anything to their owners. And, if some roads make more than five and one-half percent, the government takes half the excess for loans to the weaker roads to improve the service. On these loans the government receives six percent interest.
That is all there is to the guarantee charge. If the roads lose, they lose. If they make money, the government gets a share. Nothing is promised but a fair chance. It is the same principle exactly as that of the La Follette railway legislation in Wisconsin, except that the Wisconsin "fair rate of return" is fixed at eight percent instead of five and one-half, and the state gets nothing if the roads make more.

Mr. Boone said also that the Esch-Cummins bill "accepted the watered valuation" of railroad stocks and bonds. The only way the bill could do this would be to take the "watered valuation" of the roads as the basis of calculating the "fair return", to make which rates would be set. Does the bill prove Mr. Boone's assertion:

"Sec. 422 (4)—For the purposes of this section (fixing rates) such aggregate value of the property of the carriers shall be determined by the commission from time to time and as often as may be necessary . . . Whenever pursuant to Section 19a of this act the value of the railway property of any carrier held for and used in the service of transportation has been finally ascertained, the value so ascertained shall be deemed by the commission to be the value thereof for the purpose of determining such aggregate value."

How, then, does the commission reach "the aggregate value" upon which the rate of return is based, and which Mr. Boone says is "the watered valuation" of railroad stocks and bonds? It takes the figures reached under "Section 19a" of the Interstate Commerce Commission act. What is "Section 19a" of the Interstate Commerce Commission act? It is the La Follette physical valuation bill. If the Esch bill, as Mr. Boone charged, accepts the watered valuation of railroad securities as the basis of rate making the fault is Senator La Follette's. The method he prescribed is the method ordered to be used in the Esch-Cummins bill.

Of course the bill doesn't accept the "watered valuation". Rates are based on the actual physical valuation of the railroads, as Senator La Follette has always contended they should be.

These are the main arguments brought up by Mr. Boone. In every case comparison with the actual language of the bill shows that Mr. Boone has grossly misinterpreted its meaning.

One can easily see why, in all the voluminous literature of the opponents of Esch and Lenroot attacking the Esch-Cummins bill, there is so little actual quotation of the text of the measure itself. The gentlemen know that most people have not read the bill and will not read it. They expect that what they say will not be tested by actual comparison with the language of the bill. If the bill were all they assert, why does not their campaign literature include a copy of its vicious provisions? Why do they not quote from the bill in their speeches?

You know why. What they say is in the bill isn't there at all. They daren't get down to cases.

"THE IRON MAN"

ON the straight forward basis that Hubert D. Staats was a soldier, and a good one, the Tribune and Leader-Press recommends his candidacy for the republican nomination for county clerk to its readers. In being a soldier, Mr. Staats deserved well of this community, for it was Staats and the others like him who promptly answered the nation's need who protected the nation and saved democracy to the world. In being a good soldier Mr. Staats demonstrated the capacity for competent discharge of his duty which the county needs in its administrative offices.

Neither Staats nor his opponent has experience in the office which they seek. But it is known that Staats, under conditions of incredible danger and difficulty, kept his head and did his job. After leading a platoon in the hell of Juvigny we suspect there is little in the routine of the county clerk to dismay or embarrass him.

This newspaper is supporting soldier candidates for office because it believes that where other things are equal the men who fought for us have the best claim on the suffrages of those they defended. When with the service qualification is included executive ability—Hubert Staats was given his nickname of "The Iron Man" as a tribute to his coolness and resource in danger and difficulty—the case for the candidate is doubly strengthened. We believe that in Staats the county has a candidate of demonstrated ability as well as tested patriotism and courage, and we urge consideration of his name to all those to whom these attributes seem desirable qualifications for public office.

CHURCH NEWS

Furnished by the Church News Association

There will be opened in New York this September eight Public Good Service stations. They are projected by the American Institute of Applied Christianity, whose directors include some of the most prominent of New York's civic, social and church workers. The stations will be located in well known churches, and in social welfare club rooms in some banks and business houses, with a central station at the Hotel McAlpin in the Thirty-fourth street district.

The purposes of these stations, quite new in their plans, are exchanges of methods for as many as possible of the 20,000 men who now serve on public welfare committees, as trustees of hospitals, lay officers of churches, and civic and religious teachers; recruiting new volunteers; a training school for personal and team service; and bureaus from which workers go out to many parts of the city. No fees of any kind are charged learners. There are no courses of lectures, but everybody is at once set to work. Men whose names are known throughout the country have promised to attend at times and help in the task of getting new workers into harness.

THE PRIMARY ELECTION

WE are all aware that our political parties are very active in these days. This is quite proper, since the parties are organized primarily for the purpose of nominating and electing candidates to office. Every party has its national, state, county and local organization that it may do this work most effectively.

If the people are to be fairly represented in our republic, the voters must have a very direct control over the selection of nominees for office. If a party "Boss or some special interest" is able to select the candidates on each ticket, it makes little difference which candidate is chosen on election day. The boss or the special interest will doubtless be favored at the expense of the public good.

Two methods have been and are still being employed for the purpose of nominating candidates. One is called the Caucus and Convention system and the other the Primary Election. Since our state primary is to be held next Tuesday, it may be of special interest to present a few of its characteristic features this week.

It has been claimed that the Caucus and Convention affords great opportunity for the boss or the special interest to dictate party nominations, to put through a previously arranged "bribe." As a consequence, Wisconsin and a number of other states have adopted the primary election system for the nomination of candidates.

Any person wishing to be nominated for office secures a certain number of signatures to a petition. The number is so small that it is easy to meet the requirements. The petition is filed with the clerk of the political unit in which the office is located, a certain number of days before the Primary Election. For example, candidates for state offices must file their petition with the Secretary of State, those for county offices with the County Clerk, and those for city offices with the City Clerk. The clerk then prints the primary ballots. There is one ballot for each political party. This ballot has printed upon it the names of the offices to be filled and the names of the candidates for each office. The party ballots are of the same size and fastened together at the top. Each ballot is perforated near the upper end so it can be easily torn out.

On Primary Election Day, which is the first Tuesday in September, next Tuesday, all voters go to the polls. Upon entering the polling place each voter should give his or her name (and address if in the city) to the election clerks. He or she will then receive from the ballot clerks a primary ballot. Upon receiving it, the voter steps into the voting booth, tears out the ballot of the party for which he wishes to vote and follows the direction at the top of the ballot. After marking the ballot as directed he folds it so it cannot be read, also folds the remaining unused ballot and hands both to the person at the ballot box, again giving his name. He should see that his ballot is placed in the ballot box. The voter then passes out.

Every patriotic voter should become informed regarding the various candidates, then go to the Primary next Tuesday and help nominate for each office that person who in his judgment will serve most faithfully the highest interests of the people.

After the polls close the votes for each candidate are counted. The person receiving the highest number of votes for each office on each party ballot becomes the nominee of that party for that office and his name is placed upon the ballot to be used at the November election.

(Next Sunday Professor Kinsman will discuss "Nomination by Convention.") the citizenship of the husband determines that of the wife. Not only is it true that a woman citizen upon marrying an alien becomes herself an alien, but a woman alien upon marrying a citizen becomes a citizen. Another man made law you say. Maybe, but Congress can change it.

QUALIFICATIONS FOR VOTERS
Mrs. L. D. asks: What qualifications must a woman have in order to vote?

Reply
The same as a man. She must be a citizen of the United States and twenty one years of age. She must also have lived in the state one year and in the election district where she offers to vote ten days.

Mrs. A. K. asks: Will there be a separate ballot box for women?

No. Since women now vote for all officers, they will vote at the same polling place, use the same ballots and

DEMOCRATS AND THE PRIMARY

(The La Crosse Weekly Review)
Some of our readers have requested us to support certain republicans in the primaries for state and congressional nominations. We have refused to do so. We firmly believe the route to better government is the democratic route. We most decidedly condemn the course pursued by some papers of trying to secure the nomination of weak candidates on the opposition ticket, in order to advance their own candidate. A point in question is the fight the Milwaukee Journal is making against Senator Lenroot. They are not fighting Lenroot because they favor Mr. Thompson. They hope to see Mr. Thompson nominated because they consider him easier to defeat in the general election. The Journal is for Dr. Paul S. Reinsch for United States senator. Their plan is to help the republicans nominate the ones they think is their weakest man, to make it possible to elect Dr. Reinsch. Such journalism as this is largely responsible for the present lack of respect for editorial endorsement of candidates. It appears to us that a safer way for all concerned would be to try to get the best men nominated on both tickets and the best one of the two men elected.

deposit the ballots in the same box with men.

POLITICAL PARTIES NECESSARY
Mr. O. K. asks: Why should there be political parties?

Reply
With disappointment regarding political action fresh in mind, it is no surprise to have this question raised. Although under the influence of party bosses, parties may fail to record the will of any considerable segment of its adherents, nevertheless they have been found to be the most effective means for expressing the popular will. They crystallize governmental policies and enable the voter to express his choice of them. It is the purpose of party leaders ordinarily to gather into their party platform that group of policies desired by the majority of voters. An independent thoughtful suffrage is the most effective means to make them do so.

MISS DOROTHY BEEBE BECOMES THE BRIDE OF W. BAYARD TAYLOR

SPARTA, Wis., Sept. 4 (Special)—A pretty wedding took place at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Carl Beebe, Saturday evening, August 28, at eight o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Miss Dorothy Beebe, became the bride of W. Bayard Taylor of Montivideo, Minn. Rev. Joseph S. Morris, pastor of the Congregational church, was the officiating clergyman. The bride was attended by her sisters and cousins, Miss Helen Beebe, Alice Beebe, Mary, Frances, Ruth, Elizabeth, Louise and Margaret Beebe. After the ceremony and congratulations, a wedding supper was served, the dining room and tables being daintily decorated for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor departed on a wedding trip to the Twin Cities, after which they will be at home at Montivideo. A number of college friends of the bride and groom were here for the wedding and Miss Beebe entertained her guests for several days at a house party at her home in town and also at the Beebe cottage at Silverdale. Among the out of town guests were John Rowe of Alabama, Gerald Cunningham of Jamestown, Louise Ritscher of Beloit, Alice Harlow of Harvard, Florence Lampert of Lena, Ill., Mrs. Clara Chamberlain, mother of the bridegroom, of Montivideo, and Mrs. George Blakeslee of Minneapolis. Mrs. Chaucer Beebe entertained at a reception for the bride at her home on North Water Street. The marriage of Miss Genevieve Deitelhoff and Mr. Edwin A. Kewin took place at the Catholic church, Tuesday morning, August 24. Rev. Flock performed the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. G. S. Bear, of Sparta, the bridegroom is a son of Charles Kewin of Tomah and is employed as engineer on the narrow gauge railroad at Camp Robinson. Walter Richards of Sparta and Miss Helen Popp of Keokuk were united in marriage at Winona on July 24. The bride was employed at the Jefferson warehouse, and the bridegroom was in service for Uncle Sam in the Navy. One of the largest crowds, which has yet gathered to hear the speakers, at the Sunday evening services, was that which met at the Court House square last Sunday evening to hear Congressman John J. Esch speak on "The Value of an Education." Mr. Esch is always a welcome visitor in Sparta, and at this time of the year when the city schools are about to open, his timely topic attracted a very large audience. Mr. Esch recently some of his early training in the Sparta schools, and at one time was principal of the schools. Forest Kunes of Melrose and Miss Amy Heinicke of Sparta, were united in marriage at La Crosse. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinicke of Farmington and the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kunes of Melrose. They will make their home in Melrose. The following marriage licenses have been issued the past week by County Clerk O. J. Jackson: Edwin Kewin, Tomah and Genevieve Deitelhoff, Sparta. Daniel Sullivan and Mary Kathryn Madden, both of Sparta. W. Bayard Taylor of Montivideo, Minn. and Dorothy Beebe, Sparta. George A. Ragan, Rupert, Idaho, and Mary E. Donovan, Tomah. Harry E. Pfuhl, Newwalk and Lilian V. Drake, town of Sheldon. A number of social gatherings were given the past week, complimentary to Mrs. I. H. Hedden of Madison, who was a guest in the city. She accompanied her husband here when he came on business connected with the Interstate Milk Condensary Company. Delbert G. Baker and Hannah N. Peterson, both of the town of Greenfield. The hostesses for Mrs. Hedden were Mrs. Walter W. Card, Mrs. Ray B. Graves and Mrs. Earl Jefferson. They in turn were entertained by Mrs. Hedden at luncheon at the Sidney, Friday. Col. and Mrs. Robert B. McCoy were among the dinner guests at the home of Colonel and Mrs. C. R. Williams at Camp Douglas last Sunday. A large number of golf players accepted an invitation from the Country Club at Tomah for a joint meeting on Wednesday, at Tomah. Misses Verna Smith and Ethel

Smith entertained a party of about twenty-five friends at a parcel show, on Thursday evening at the home of the former for Miss Ethel Nicol. Quite a number of the Sparta people attended the ice cream social held for the Big Creek Church at the home of Andrew Hutson, and report a good time and large attendance. G. W. Bush of Omaha, Neb., has been visiting relatives in the city and vicinity. He departed for Chicago last week. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Canfield have returned to Los Angeles, Cal., after spending the greater part of the summer here with relatives and friends. Miss Mary Morrow is visiting with friends in Duluth and Minneapolis, Minn. Dr. D. A. Taylor, a former Sparta man, and brother of Robert J. Taylor of this city, is taking an extensive trip through Europe, visiting England, Ireland, Scotland, France, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy. Miss Annette Jones entertained a company of friends at breakfast, Wednesday. Attorney Ray B. Graves has been in Chicago several days on business. Mrs. D. C. Beebe was one of the Spartans to enjoy a trip in the Sunday-Steele aeroplane. H. W. Barney and family had as their guest last week, Dr. H. D. Northrup of Washington, D. C. B. B. Baldwin spent a few days with friends at Ashland last week. His wife and daughter, who have been there for several weeks, past accompanied him home. The regular monthly meeting of the Morrow Memorial home was held on Wednesday. S. H. Keeler has returned home from Chicago where he spent several days on business. Miss Harriet Murphy has returned to Wautoma to resume her duties as principal of the schools of that place. One Disadvantage An Ohio newspaper editor spent a few days in New York, and while there somebody asked him how he liked the big town. "I care for it very little," replied the editor. AMERICA TO PAY TRIBUTE TO SWEDISH NIGHTINGALE ON ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH

NEW YORK.—America will pay tribute to Jenny Lind on October 6, the one-hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Swedish Nightingale, whom P. T. Barnum brought to this country in 1850 on her spectacular concert tour of nearly two years. The centennial is to be commemorated throughout the music-loving world. In Sweden, in England and in other countries where she sang, fitting plans are under way to honor the greatest singer of her time—the fine, noble-hearted woman, whose charity was as rare as her art.

Her admirers in New York City will celebrate the event in a unique way. They will give an historical concert—reproduce the first concert Jenny Lind gave in this country, bringing back the stage picture and atmosphere of that memorable night of September 11, 1850. The same program will be given. The proceeds of the concert will be given to the same charitable institutions to which Jenny Lind gave the proceeds of the original concert.

Frieda Hempel will appear in the role of her famous predecessor. She will wear an exact copy of the gown worn by the nineteenth century diva; will sing the same arias, and play her own accompaniments to the same group of songs on the same piano Jenny Lind played them—a piano autographed by the Swedish Nightingale on the night of her debut.

The centennial concert will be given in Carnegie Hall on the evening of October 6. Castle Garden, the scene of Jenny Lind's first American triumph, has been transformed into the Aquarium and thus is deprived of the honor of housing another memorable audience.

It is contemplated to hold a centennial exhibit, however, in the old circular building in Battery Park from October 1 to October 10. Many of Jenny Lind's personal belongings and interesting relics associated with her tour here will be shown. The old concert grand piano will have its place of honor.

On the afternoon of October 6, the park commissioners of New York City will present to the Aquarium a marble bust of Jenny Lind and a portrait of the famous singer, both made for her when she was in this country.

Many Cities to Celebrate
Other American cities where Jenny Lind sang are arranging to celebrate the day.

Jenny Lind was born in Stockholm of humble parents. She sang from childhood and famous teachers became interested in her. At 12, her voice entirely failed. Four years later it came back and her remarkable career began. Her first operatic role was Alice in Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable." Having been acclaimed in her own country and in Norway, she carried her conquests to the continent and to England.

She was probably the most talked-a "batter"—"a Mad Hatter" they called him—paid $225 for the first New York ticket. His unheard of extravagance made him famous. The highest price paid for a single ticket was in Providence, where the bit of pasteboard was knocked down to Colonel Ross for $650.

The Nightingale gave about 135 concerts in this country—more than thirty-five in New York City. Everywhere audiences fought to gain entrance to the concert halls. Everywhere they stormed her with applause—and everywhere admirers and charity seekers besieged her. Extra concerts had to be given to satisfy the throngs—and Jenny Lind herself added more extra concerts for charity.

People prominent in public life paid her great honors. Mayors and governors presented their compliments in person.

Jenny Lind broke her contract with fifty-five concerts yet to sing—but the great showman and the Nightingale parted friends. While visiting in Boston, she was married to Otto of person in public life in all Europe when Barnum, without having seen her or heard her, persuaded her to make a tour of the United States. No sooner was the contract signed than the new impresario, according to his autobiography, "began to prepare the public mind for the reception of the great songstress."

The steamer Atlantic that brought her to this country, was saluted at Sandy Hook and again as she plowed up the Narrows. Forty thousand people assembled at the landing and on the surrounding piers to greet her. Triumphant arches marked her pathway. Crowds surged around her hotel and clamored for her appearance. Auctions for the sale of tickets brought thousands of buyers. Genin, Goldschmidt, composer and pianist, and shortly thereafter returned to Europe. In 1858, she took up her residence in England, where she died in 1887.

NEW DEPARTMENTS
AND CHANGES MARK
OPENING OF SCHOOL

The authorities, justified many times the venture. Under the leadership of Miss Prudence Cutright, who was formerly associated with the Stevens Point Normal school, the faculty of the city grades revised the course in reading through the lower six grades in such a way that the quantity of reading done by students during the year just closed was perhaps a half dozen times more than that of any previous year, and the expense involved in supplying this additional material was equal to or probably a trifle less than the investment in books during the average year. The new plan was put into operation by the establishment of a so-called circulating library. Books were purchased in quantities of twenty-five and fifty, they were listed according to grades, and each teacher in the city was provided with a list. Each Wednesday afternoon, a transfer man called at the central library at the high school to take out to the grades books requisitioned by the teachers. Any set of books might be retained two weeks, and then sent back to the central library from which it was circulated to another school. Thus, a given book served as many as perhaps a half dozen schools during the semester. The expense of transferring books was very small compared to the investment necessary to provide all schools in the city with copies of all books listed.

The scheme will be continued during the coming year. In addition, a definite outline of the work to be accomplished in other basic subjects in the grades will be developed by the supervisor and teachers just as was the course in reading.

Physical Education
In physical education, there will be further development of a systematic plan which was introduced last year under the direction of Mr. Mead. In addition to the formal calisthenics, baseball and volleyball leagues were organized by the grade schools, and a series of games in the spring determined the championship in playground ball for the boys and in volleyball for the girls. There was intense interest and keen rivalry, and because several hundred boys and girls participated in the games, it is believed that the scheme proved a valuable supplement to the formal physical education work.

Manual Training
The work in manual arts under the direction of Mr. Peart was extended to the fifth and sixth grades last year, although heretofore it had been confined to the seventh and eighth grades and the high school. The new departure proved so successful that it will be continued in those buildings which at the present time provide adequate space. In the high school a new side of the course in manual arts was the establishing and equipping of a garage which proved to be very popular. The demand by students for this work this year is so large that not all will be accommodated.

Domestic Science
In domestic science, under the direction of Mrs. L. O. Holly, the course will be developed this year to include more work in home nursing, dietetics, and care of children and home making in both the grades and the high school. The domestic science work was also extended to the fourth and fifth grades last year and the plan will be continued the coming year. At the present time, the high school course provides for work in cooking, home making, sewing, dress making, millinery, and paper work. The drawing will be under the direction of Miss Mcneer who has been with the city schools a number of years. The course in drawing is also undergoing improvements, although it is now quite complete and comprehensive. The work will be correlated with other subjects in the various grades and in the high school.

The work in music under the direction of Miss Trane is also being developed to include more which is designed to create pleasure in singing on the part of pupils. Of course this is additional to the technical work which is given throughout the grades and also in the high school. In the latter institution, the girls' and boys' choir clubs, the orchestra, and the chorus sections which have been so popular in the past will be continued this year.

School for Deaf
The school for the deaf, which during the past year was held at the Y. M. C. A., will be conducted in the Washington building at the corner of Sixteenth and Vine streets during the coming year. This change, which is temporary, was necessary because of the overcrowded condition at the Washington school and the interruptions on account of the lack of room at the Y. M. C. A. Miss Clara Miller will assist Miss Saunders in caring for at least sixteen deaf children. In addition to that, these people will conduct work with individuals in speech correction, the teachers of the city being at liberty to send to them children who are defective.

New Trained Worker
A new departure this year is the hiring of a trained worker whose official title will be that of vocational guidance and attendance supervisor. Miss Josephine Hinton, a former teacher in the Logan school, who since leaving here completed a course in social economics at University of Wisconsin, will have charge of the attendance and also the development of a course of instruction in vocational guidance for all grades and the high school. She will have police powers in so far as it will be necessary to enforce compliance with school attendance laws, and the street trades law, but after a time, it is believed that this will constitute a small portion of her time because it is planned to attack the problem from an angle from which very little work has been done in the past. Miss Hinton will be stationed in the office of the superintendent, and she will be at the call of the principals of the public schools, the director of the vocational school, and the teachers of the parochial schools. It will be her duty to investigate cases of truancy, to consult with mothers where children of school age are planning on leaving school, and to devise methods of keeping them in school whenever possible.

Under present conditions, many children are compelled to leave school with very little information concerning the relative merits of the various trades and professions. Often times, too, children get into so-called "blind-alley" jobs where they are neither happy nor contented and where their effort are not as effective as they would be in work which they as individuals were better equipped to do. It will be Miss Hinton's responsibility to work out a course of instruction suitable to the grades and high school for the purpose of giving children information so that when it becomes necessary for them to drop out of school they will stand a better chance of getting into positions which they are best able to fill and which will probably produce greater returns for both themselves and their employers. An effort will be made by the faculty under Miss Hinton's leadership to study the special abilities and aptitudes of individuals and to advise with them whenever it is possible. The undertaking is a new one in the school field, only two or three cities having undertaken the work in this way, but the results in these have convinced the board of education that it will be a success in our own city.

Public Speaking Course
Among the new departures in the high school will be the introduction of a course in public speaking which will be elective to boys and girls of the upper classes, and which will provide for them instruction in the art of expression. At the present time, the course of study in the high school provides for work in recitation, guidance, and all pupils who reach the junior year are required to take it. There is keen interest on the part of students, and the course as developed has been very satisfactory.

A record attendance is expected at the high school the coming year, and a larger attendance than last year is anticipated throughout the city. The school census showed an increase over last year, as did also the school attendance.

A Few New Teachers
There will be some new faces among the faculties of the various schools, although the loss of teachers in the grades this year is not as large as in some cases in the past. The new people come well recommended, and it is believed that the faculties in the different schools will be well balanced and efficient.

The vocational school which will occupy the whole building at the corner of Sixth and Vine streets will also start Tuesday, September 7th. There have been some changes in the faculty of that school, but here also the new faculty is well balanced and very promising.

The following is a list of the teachers of the public school force:

Public Debate

ROOST FOR SOLDIERS.
Editor, Tribune and Leader-Press.

Dear Sir:
Several weeks ago I read a statement in your paper that you would support manhood candidates for public office, but I have not yet seen a single word mentioned about one of our soldiers, Stanley G. Gordon, who is a candidate for District Attorney of the republican ticket.

I know that Stanley Gordon was one of the first of our La Crosse boys to volunteer for service, and that while he was in the army, he spent more than a year and a half in France, and took part as a man in the line in six of the big battles of the world.

I am sure the public believes in doing everything they can to reward the man who offered his life for our country. I, myself, paid dearly for three months of service in the trenches, and I know that I am not alone in this.

We, who did not serve, will never know the horrors of war or the sacrifices our boys made for us. We can and should do all in our power to reward those who did return.

John Vingers,
1329 Farnam Street, La Crosse, Wis.

Veteran Answers Lyons
Editor, Tribune and Leader-Press.

Dear Sir:
There appeared yesterday in your columns headed Public Debate an open letter written by a veteran of the recent world war and addressed to Hon. John J. Esch. Of course, if this letter was sent to Hon. John J. Esch, it would have received a courteous and painstaking reply pointing out the many inaccuracies contained. However, since the writer and Gordon do not live in the same battle, I feel free to answer him in the public.

In the first place, by what manner of presumption does this veteran presume to speak for all ex-soldiers of the Congress and district in saying that "the soldiers will join on September seventh with your other constituents to repeal the Esch-Cummins Law"?

Retiring from Congress, the man who voted for it, etc. Did he go out of his way to question us, address a circular letter to us or endeavor in any way to assuage our anger?

This matter is not a new one. How then can we know our real opinion? Surely he doesn't lay claim to having made some new discoveries in thought and feeling, which by the way, is world-wide in scope, affecting not only United States and Europe, but also Asia, Africa and Australia, does he not?

A bit far-fetched to lay the blame for the present high prices on the shoulders of one man? Why, even among the veterans of the world war, have they effect to that a wife who formerly was sold for only a few arrows heads now costs a considerably large number.

Does the man who voted for the Esch-Cummins Law, then, suppose for one moment that this country could be passing certain legislative measures which would affect the rise in prices? The causes for this large increase in commodity prices are more fundamental. First, in the war, the world was in a state of emergency, and the law of supply and demand of course continued to operate. Another cause for high prices, I might mention is the inflation of the currency.

While dealing with this subject of the high cost of living let me say at this point that I view the present situation which have operated to bring about this situation this "hue and cry" about "profiteering" hardly sounds reasonable. There has been some "profiteering" of course, but even if there were none we would still have with us the high cost of living. Surely, fellow veterans, we would not charge the congress for failure to do that which the legislative bodies of other nations have been unable to perform.

Yes, you single out one member of our congress and charge him with the failure to "co-operate with any honest effort made to prevent the profiteers from gouging the public."

Do you charge you mention the Esch-Cummins Railroad bill. But before going any further let me ask you a few questions. Did you read the bill through and are you voicing someone else's opinion? If you have read the bill through please name the section which guarantees to the railroad owners a profit of 10 percent on their watered stock. Do you know anything about the opposition which representatives of the railroad owners registered against various sections of this bill while it was being discussed in the committee rooms at Washington? Did the quotation of prices for railroad stocks on the New York Stock Exchange show any appreciable rise at the time of the passage of this bill? How then do you suppose you can charge that the bill is in the interests of Wall Street railroad owners?

It is easy enough, fellow veterans, to make assertions but it is another matter to prove them. The last paragraph of your letter is a most bitter attack on the integrity of one of the ablest legislators this country has ever produced.

In conclusion I wish to say that I am of the same opinion as our worthy Governor Phillip in the statement he recently made when John J. Esch came to more for us in one day than his opponent could do during a whole term.

Yours very truly,
EDWIN M. JOHNSON

REDUCTIO AD ABSURDUM
La Crosse, Wis., 9-4-29.

Editor Tribune:
I have read with much interest in yesterday's paper a letter from Stanley G. Gordon, who makes much boast of his long service to the country in the late war. There are other veterans who served the country with equal fidelity and length of time, who do not at all agree with the outrageous bill. It is evident that whatever else the sergeant learned from his war experience, he did not learn to use mathematics. To repeat the silly statement of the Chicago Tribune that the result of the increased freight rates will add $355 annually to the expense of every family in the United States. How foolish! Let us see. Using the customary figures for estimating families of one person in the family, we are 22 million families in the United States. Multiplying 22 millions by $355, gives the enormous total of $8,000,000,000 increase over the previous amount of the freight bill of the country. The Washington Post estimates the additional revenue to be derived from the increase in the rates to be about one billion dollars, which, the average increase of the rates throughout the country being 35%, would make a previous freight bill of $2,800,000,000. It has been found that the total freight bill of the country before the increased rates was $2,800,000,000. This alleged $8,000,000,000 is not the total freight bill as it will be, but the increase over the original amount, eight times the amount of increase over the amount figured by the Washington Post, and six times the highest previous estimated increase. The wild estimate assumed by Senator Esch, the high standing of the writer, and the letter of the Sergeant are apparent the moment one uses a pencil and a very small piece of paper.

It is a pity that the companion over-the-sea men and the voters of the district generally by precisely such foolishness and tactics of falsehood and misrepresentation. It seems not to have given Mr. Esch the courtesy of the least attention to the explanations amounting to a mountain of facts.

Who is Mr. Esch? Not merely our representative in Congress, but a man who has for over twenty years had the high respect of all people in Congress. Representatives and Senators alike, who have won a commanding position in the estimation of all the people of the land, without regard to politics or creed, and an international reputation as a statesman of rare ability and a gentleman of high honor and integrity. Surely, Mr. Esch, when a man of that high standing and caliber makes a statement of fact or produces an argument, the most careful and high standing critics should be made to hear his argument to respectful consideration. Has it been accorded this? The letter in question is a case in point.

Mr. Esch has specifically denied that he has been working in the interests of Wall Street, in the production of the Esch-Cummins bill and shown that the Esch-Cummins bill was bitterly opposed to the most important clauses in the bill. Mr. Lyons, ignoring the statements of Mr. Esch, repeats the charges. Now it is up to Mr. Lyons to produce his proof.

Mr. Esch has shown that the bill does not increase the dividends to the railroad companies, and explains precisely what the bill does in that respect. Mr. Lyons repeats the charges. Now it is up to Mr. Lyons to produce the dividends. To a man up a tree, it looks very much as if Mr. Lyons never read the bill and does not of his own knowledge know what is in it.

Yours Respectfully,
A Citizen Who Likes the Truth.

THINGS

By H. MARGARET JOSTEN

ANDREAS PAVLEY and Serge Oukrainsky, who with their Russian ballet and Philharmonic orchestra will appear here October 1 as the opening number of the La Crosse Music Study club course, are recognized as artists in their profession, unsurpassed and supreme, men of high ideals in their life and in their art. In their capacity as premiers, danseurs etoiles and maitres de ballet of the Chicago Grand opera, their success has been sensational and from their ballet school they have in the last few years developed a group of dancers from among their American pupils, who are a living proof that in the art of dancing as in other forms of art, American can produce the best. Indeed they have exploded the theory that our dancing temperaments must be imported. Now practically all the dancers of the Chicago Opera are chosen from among the pupils of Pavley and Oukrainsky and it was these dancers who created such a sensation in New York, Boston and other eastern cities the past season.

The apparent supremacy of the foreign dancer on our shores has been sadly aggravated by the multitude of would-be instructors who rushed in like Klondike gold diggers to get what was not coming to them, while the sudden interest in the dance was on the up-grade.

It was a lovely chance to hang out a shingle and perpetuate in the name of "interpretative dancing" all sorts of aesthetic crimes. Rather vague and elusive, the plan yielded easily to a certain degree of make-believe, and the always gullible public was only too ready to bite.

With backing but no background, either of technical or historical knowledge, interpretations that don't interpret are produced in the name of art. Catching butterflies (we hope that they are not other flies) and picking daisies are the inevitable accompaniments to Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," for instance. Wiggling and wriggling out of time to a Hungarian rhapsody in a manner no good or bad Hungarian ever thought of doing, is supposed to visualize its sensuous rhythms.

Now all and any of these meaningless gyrations to fast or slow music are as far removed from real pantomime, from the telling of a definite emotion, experience, mood or story, as a chromo differs from a master painting. We do not need Arthur Symonds to point out to us that pantomime is one of the seven arts. Illustrative as his observations are. We ought to begin to realize this for ourselves.

If you attend the Pavley-Oukrainsky ballet with seeing eyes, you will learn much in this regard, for every production will be stamped by dancing that has a reason for its artistic existence.

The La Crosse Normal school is offering two striking concerts as part of their 1920-21 course. The Normal has during the past year made an effort to give their own students and the community as well the opportunity to hear each season several artists of recognized ability. The school is being rewarded now yearly by the evidences of unquestioning confidence the city feels in their choice of entertainment course.

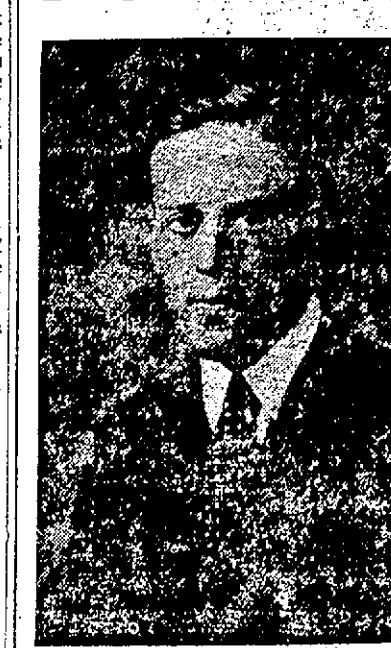

The Normal course will open this year November 1 with a concert by Myrna Sharlow, prima donna soprano. Miss Sharlow's successes in recent opera seasons as well as the continuing enthusiasm over her recitals recommended her to the La Crosse audience as a singer worth knowing. Miss Sharlow is one of the younger American singers with the Chicago Opera association and her youthful beauty as well as her sweet voice are constantly being marked by her many delighted audiences.

Later in the season La Crosse will enjoy the Trio Acollenne, composed of three artists of high rank, Mrs. and Czerwonsky, violinist; Dr. Steindel, cellist, and M. Boguslawski, the Russian pianist. It is said that no more accomplished and satisfactory violinist is appearing today than Mr. Czerwonsky. This work does not suffer by comparison with that of Ysaye and Kreisler. Bruno Steindel is regarded by many as the greatest cellist in this country, while M. Boguslawski's interpretative personality is spoken of as one of the dominant type. This group may be counted on to give a thoughtful musical audience genuine pleasure.

We went back to the wagons and traveled four miles north, then turning west to our trail. The advance guard soon came back and informed us that they had seen troops ahead of them. I rode out to a knoll, and looking through my field glasses, I discovered them to be soldiers, so we went out to meet them and found that it was Lieutenant Walker, with a small company of ten men. He informed us that he had been sent out by General Smith to look us up, thinking that we had been killed by Indians.

Off for Fort Lyons

"We all camped together that night and we had a fine night's rest. The next morning we all started together, sending a few of the men out to kill some game for our dinner. They came back about noon with twenty-two jack rabbits, and they certainly tasted good after our usual hard tack, coffee and bacon. We camped on the banks of the Arkansas river, where we washed our clothes, went swimming and had a good time for the first time on the trip. At 1 o'clock we started on our last lap for Fort Lyons, a distance of about thirty-two miles, arriving there at eight o'clock in the evening. The mule that was left to follow, came in to Fort Lyons the next day. We had hard fighting in those days. Don't forget the boys in blue that won the west."

PERSONAL PAPERS AND RELICS OF GENERAL RUSK PRESENTED TO STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY

SPECTACULAR ARE INCIDENTS IN LIFE OF VIROQUA CITIZEN

Statesman Who Started Political Life on the Bad Axe is Conspicuous Figure

A most important accession to the manuscript sources of Wisconsin history and United States history has just been made in the acquisition by the State Historical society of the papers of the late General Jeremiah M. Rusk, so well remembered by older Wisconsin people as their governor during the period 1882 to 1889. The papers, which filled a good sized wooden trunk, were turned over to the society by the general's daughter, Miss Mary M. Rusk, who, as mistress of the Rusk home in Viroqua, was their custodian. Miss Rusk also presented to the society an oil painting of the general, a bronze relief, his sword, uniform, medals and other memorabilia which will be preserved in the Historical Museum.

Came West Early

Born in 1829 on an Ohio farm, orphaned by the death of his father, compelled to do a man's work on the farm and as a stage driver while still a mere boy, young Rusk secured only such rudimentary education as the district school afforded. He settled on a farm in Vernon (then Bad Axe) county, Wisconsin, in 1852; served as sheriff of the county, then entered the army and won rapid promotion. For gallant and successful leadership of his regiment in the battle of Gettysburg he was promoted brigadier general. His military services laid the foundation for his later remarkable political career. In 1871 he took his seat in the national congress as representative from the sixth (later the seventh) Wisconsin district and he was twice re-elected, retiring from his farm at the close of his third term in 1877. In 1881 he was elected governor. He was twice re-elected, by increasing majorities, and owing to a change in the law his gubernatorial service terminated in 1889.

Spectacular Incidents

The most spectacular incidents in Rusk's long career as governor were his decision to give "bread" not bays— to a thousand turbulent railway construction laborers suddenly thrown out of employment by the collapse of the construction company, and his actual use of bullets and bayonets on the riotous mob at Bay View (Milwaukee) May 6, 1886, to prevent destruction of property and lives. This latter incident, coming in the midst of widespread disturbances, including the anarchist bomb-murders in Chicago, made Governor Rusk a national figure and gave him the unanimous support of the Wisconsin delegation as a republican candidate for president in 1888. General Harrison receiving the nomination and being elected over Grover Cleveland, Rusk was appointed to a seat in the cabinet as secretary of the new department of agriculture. This was his last and in some respects most notable public service. After the expiration of his term, in March, 1893, he returned to Viro-qua, "full of years and honors." He died November 21, 1933.

Papers Reveal History

The papers before us illustrate somewhat unequally the several features of General Rusk's political career from his first election to the national house of representatives in 1871 to his retirement from Harrison's cabinet in 1893. The main element in them is the general's correspondence with public men and with business men, but there are a few speeches and addresses, and a number of briefs relating especially to the policies of the department of agriculture. As the first secretary of the new department of agriculture, the development of the work went forward in response to the creative impulse Mr. Rusk brought to it. These papers helped to reveal the processes by which the department attained so exalted a place in the public esteem during the first four years of its history. The business papers relate mainly to the Kickapoo Valley and Northern railroad, the one big enterprise with which General Rusk was associated, though a few items deal with land purchases. But there is no consistent body of material on business matters.

Keeps all Letters

For politics the case is different. The general seems to have preserved everything in the form of "letters received," and we have his own letters, press copy books, fourteen volumes, containing the complete series of "letters sent" during his governorship, 1882-1889, and his secretaryship, 1889-1893. Between the two sets of letters we obtain light on most of the large political happenings with which the general himself was connected and in addition many glimpses in political vistas along which his path led.

The letters bearing on Rusk's congressional career, 1872-1879, are not numerous or especially illuminative of the history of the legislation in that period. But those of his second political period, 1882-1889, during which he was governor of Wisconsin, shed a good deal of light on the course of politics in our state. Of dramatic interest are the letters and papers bearing upon the anarchist riots of May, 1886, which Governor Rusk put down by the use of state troops. Those of the third political period, 1888-1893 (the period may be said to begin with the convention of 1888), are naturally of still higher import both as regards their bearing on state history and their usefulness as a source for national history. The collection contains autograph letters from most of the prominent republican politicians in Wisconsin, also some democrats, and from a long list of national leaders, including Garfield, Blaine, Sherman, Harrison, Platt, Conkling and many others. One conspicuously illustrated from a variety of angles, is the methods of the office seekers. A large proportion of the letters received by General Rusk as secretary of agriculture were in the interest of this man or that woman who wanted a "job" in the department. "For God's sake," wrote one on one occasion, "give Mrs. something to do. I am tired of finding her in my committee room and seeing her at my door. She is a refreshingly note in a letter from Tom Platt of New York, October, 1890, who writes: "(George Jones) of Tioga county, New York, is employed somewhere about your department. Please arrange to have him go home to vote."

The Rusk papers will do much to put the layman in touch with the spirit of politics as it was in the eighties and nineties of last century, and they will enable historical students to do justice to a distinguished state leader of the generation immediately preceding our own.

THINGS CONGREGATIONAL

The morning service of worship for the season of 1920-21 at the church, corner 7th and Main, will be resumed at 10:30 today. The topic of the sermon is, "Capital and Labor and the Golden Rule." This service, which is always open to the public, should be of special interest and value in the midst of the industrial struggle of our day. A violin solo by Mrs. Percy Bentley, will interest many.

Regular choir rehearsals, conducted by Mrs. R. C. Whipple, are to be held at 7:30 P. M. Thursdays and 9:30 A. M. Sundays.

The school will hold a Rally and Registration service at 12:00 o'clock noon Sunday, September 12. All pupils and teachers, with parents and friends, are expected at this service.

Congregationalists from Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and from all parts of the United States, as well as from many mission lands, gathered in International Council at Boston June 29-July 6. Great emphasis was given in this Council to the significance of the principles of the Pilgrim Fathers as the basis of political freedom as well as religious progress. The British delegates uttered frequent expressions of gratitude that all the pilgrims did not migrate to the American shores. Emphasis was also given to the fact that the Pilgrim spirit has been reinforced in America by true pilgrims from almost every kindred and tribe and tongue. The outstanding interests for the future were in the preservation and extension of these Pilgrim principles as foundations for universal religious and political freedom, and for the reign of justice in the affairs of men throughout the world.

The Rev. A. H. Miner, a notable character in Wisconsin, celebrated his 91st birthday with the Council at Plymouth, offering a very impressive prayer on the occasion. The sudden death by drowning on August 6th of Dr. Hubert C. Herring, General Secretary of the National Council, is one of the greatest personal losses to Congregational churches in many years.

The eighty-second annual meeting of the Wisconsin Congregational Conference will be held in Madison October 12-14. In the evenings there will be joint sessions with the Presbyterian Synod of Wisconsin. A notable out-aside speaker will be President Henry Churchill King, of Oberlin College, and the present Moderator of the National Council.

WENZEL TUCHECK'S DIARY TELLS GRAPHIC STORY OF ONE INDIAN UPRISING

A graphic account of the exploits of the federal army during the period of the Indian uprisings in the west is given by Mr. Wenzel Tucheck, of this city, who was in charge of an expedition from Camp Sully, Indian Territory, to Fort Lyons, Colorado. Sergeant Tucheck and his command withstood many attacks by the Indians during the trip—but let the soldier tell the story in his own way: "In connection with my experience in the conquest of the west, I will describe to you a trip I made in March, 1871, from Camp Sully, Indian Territory, to Fort Lyons, Colorado. I was detailed and put in charge of an escort, consisting of twenty men and six, four mule teams, to go with General Miles from Camp Sully to Fort Lyons. With our ration and everything in readiness, we left Camp Sully on the seventeenth of March, with the intention of making the trip in five days, but as General Miles was in a hurry, we made it in three days.

"The first day out we saw quite a few Indians, but none of them came near us. After traveling all day with our mules and wagons, we camped for the night near a creek, which had good water and level surrounding territory. The cook finally called supper and we sat down to our fine supper of hard tack, bacon and coffee. That night I had six men out of my command to stand picket, and two to stand guard and keep on the lookout for Indians, and because of this you can see how much sleep the men had on the trip. The next day, after our breakfast of bacon, hard tack and coffee, we got everything ready to continue the journey. We broke camp and moved along very nicely for about two hours, when we sighted a band of Indians in the distance.

"Realizing that we would have to put up a fight, I ordered my men to turn back where we could get on level ground. We then formed a corral of the wagons to protect the teams from the Indians which were now very near. Pretty soon we heard the war whoop, and saw them coming galloping towards us. We let them have the range of our pistols, and then we let them have the lead. This fight lasted for about three-quarters of an hour, when they turned their backs to us and ran, and we were not bothered with the war whoop any more that day. We followed them out for a little distance and then went back to our wagons.

On the Trail

"After getting back on the trail, we kept up a steady pace until evening, when we halted to rest and have supper. Our Bill-O-Pare was the same coffee, bacon and hard-tack. Camping there until after night, we put some wood on the fire and moved on towards Fort Lyons, striking camp about eleven o'clock and stopped for the night. Don't forget the men that had to stand picket and guard that night after traveling twenty-two miles, and having a fight with the Indians.

"The next day we had nice weather and after traveling along for several hours, the advance guard came galloping back towards us and we knew that it meant Indians. I told the men to get ready for battle, formed the corral to protect the teams, and waited for the Redskins to come. This time they did not come, so I took ten men and set out to look them up. Looking through my field glasses, I noticed a band of Indians going in the opposite direction from us, so we went back and started on our journey again. No sooner had we gotten on our way, when the advance guard again came galloping back to us. After going through our usual preparation for incidents of this kind, the Indians came and we found that they had new tactics this time. They circled around us, and because they would not come within range of our pistols, we had to let them play and war whoop around

PEA CANNERIES DEVELOP GREAT NEW INDUSTRY IN WEALTHY DAIRY COUNTY

LA CROSSE COUNTY ATTAINS IMPORTANT POSITION IN TRADE

Nearly Million Dollars a Year is
Market Value of Peas
Turned Out Here

Long heralded as one of the great dairy counties in a great dairy state, La Crosse county has come to the forefront as one of the largest producers of canned peas in the country. In this county during the season just closed, four canneries packed approximately 250,000 cases or 6,000,000 cans of peas. With an average value of $2 per case, the pack will be marketed for $750,000. The output represents the yield of approximately 2,800 acres of land.

While the pea canning industry in this county was started 15 years ago by the Onalaska Canning company, it has only attained large proportions within the past few years. Farmers who have experimented with the raising of peas now pronounce it one of the most valuable crops, second only to tobacco, and the quickest grown and easiest handled of any crops raised in this section.

Harvest in Six Weeks

Only six weeks is required to raise and harvest a crop of peas in this climate, compared with 14 weeks for corn. The harvest of early peas starts the last week in June and the pack of late peas is completed by the middle of August. After the pea crop is cut farmers have found it advantageous and profitable to plant buckwheat or cabbage on the same land, thus raising two good-paying crops a year.

The average net yield of peas gives the farmer between $50 and $125 per acre. One widow woman near Bangor this year realized $450 from the sale of peas raised on three acres of land, or an average of $150 per acre. Many farmers year after year average between $75 and $100 per acre on their pea crops.

Enriches the Soil

From an agricultural standpoint the raising of peas is said to be a desirable pursuit. Pea vines during the growing season draw out of the soil quantities of nitrogen which, deposited in the soil, serve to enrich the ground. One farmer who for five consecutive years raised peas on the same piece of land, found the ground so rich that he was forced to raise a crop of corn the sixth year to rob the soil of some of its fertility.

Pea vines, the refuse left after the harvest, has been found to be one of the most nourishing foods for cattle. All of the canneries in La Crosse county stock their home farms each fall with cattle bought as stockers and feeders, fatten them on pea vines until January, and then feed corn until they are in prime condition for market. This has been found to be a profitable sideline for the canneries.

History of Plants

The Onalaska Canning company launched into the packing of peas in 1905. This plant also cans sweet corn, succinot and pickles.

The West Salem Canning company was incorporated in 1909.

The Holmen Canning company started its plant three years later.

The last to enter the field in this county was the Hussa Brewing company, which converted its brewery at Bangor into a canning two years ago. This firm, now known as the Hussa Canning company, also puts up pickles and sweet corn.

The Holmen and West Salem canneries are devoted exclusively to the packing of peas.

Peas are contracted to grow for the canneries at a minimum of cost, and their obligation in the matter extends to deliver the crop, when harvested, to the canneries furnishing the seed.

Failure is Unknown

A failure in the pea crop has never been encountered in this county. Scattered tracts of peas have been badly lodged by heavy rains and floods, and occasionally a field suffers from a hail storm, but each year since the canneries have been in operation, the production has been approximately the amount figured by the canneries at the commencement of the season.

Within a radius of three miles of the canneries the pea vines, when cut, are loaded onto wagons or auto trucks and conveyed to the canneries, where they are put through the viner and later go into the main factory to be sorted, cooked and canned. In localities more than three miles away from the plant vines are installed by the canneries for the use of farmers raising peas in that neighborhood. After the peas are stripped from the vines in this machine, the product is transported by automobile truck to the canneries and speedily packed.

Viners in Localities

The viner is installed in different localities are provided by the canneries, which pay a rental for their use to the patentee ranging from $50 to $75 per year.

In the canneries peas are graded as to quality, in fancy and standard classes. There are two varieties of peas, the early and late. The early pea is known as the Alaskan variety and is harvested early in July. The late peas are graded in five sizes, the smallest called No. 1 and ranging up to No. 5. The peas bring, depending upon their grade, from $2.20 to $4 a case.

All Own Big Farms

To assure an abundant crop of peas each year, each of the La Crosse county canneries owns and operates a large farm.

The Onalaska Canning company several years ago purchased the famous Sharpless farm on the North Salem road, at the foot of "Nigger Nathan" hill. This is a 600-acre farm, admirably adapted to the raising of peas and other products handled by the canneries and equipped with all the latest machinery and labor-saving devices, with huge auto trucks to carry the produce to the canneries.

The West Salem Canning company owns the two Coburn farms, southwest of the village, said to be one of the finest tracts in the La Crosse valley and embracing over 400 acres.

The Holmen Canning company purchased two farms near New Amsterdam formerly owned by James McHugh, including 600 acres of fine rich land. Two years ago the canneries had one field of peas on this farm covering 300 acres.

The Bangor company also owns a large farm.

Millions of Cans Used

An idea of the extent of the canning business in this county may be obtained when one learns that during the pea packing each plant uses a carload of tin cans per day.

In each plant during the packing season between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 cans are used. Cans and boxes for the season's pack are ordered at the end of one season for the next year's business and shipment and storage of cans begins early in January, a full half year before utilized.

While the pea canning season is only six weeks long, months of labor are required to prepare for the rush. Machinery must be overhauled, new devices installed, huge quantities of cans and boxes purchased and stored, and arrangements made to hire full crews for all departments before the pack begins. Once the plant starts, the machinery is kept steadily in motion, day and night, if necessary, handling the crop as fast as it is cut.

Labor Problem Solved

The labor problem in La Crosse county canneries was a serious one during the war, but for the past two seasons the plants have had no difficulty in enlisting crews, hiring school children during the vacation period and men and women who applied for work. Many La Crosse high and normal students earned substantial sums working in the canneries during the past summer.

Whole Families Work

In Onalaska, Holmen, West Salem and Bangor the canning season is a harvest time for many families. Men, women and children who do not labor at any other time of the year help out in the canneries during the busy season and increase their incomes greatly, earning money to spend for luxuries and pleasures and for the necessities of life as well. A large proportion of the cost of a case of peas goes to pay labor employed in raising and canning the product.

In addition to the four canneries in operation in this county, two new pea canneries have been launched, at Galeville and Blair. The Blair plant was in operation this year and the Galeville canneries will be finished in time for next season's pack.

EXPECT HUNDREDS TO BE EXAMINED AT CHEST CLINIC

Elaborate Arrangements Made for Event to be Held in La Crosse this Week

La Crosse is offered an unusual opportunity to gain favorable comment throughout the country and state in the free chest clinic to be conducted in the court house on September 10 and 11, according to Mr. Theodore Werle, director of clinics for the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. Because the clinic dates are coincident with the meeting of the State Medical society, the former will be watched not only by Wisconsin physicians in attendance at the medical meeting, but by prominent visitors from outside of the state.

An organized effort is being made by local workers and members of the State Tuberculosis association staff to reach as many people as possible in La Crosse and adjoining counties in order to impress any who have reason to be concerned about the condition of their lungs with the advisability of securing a chest examination. The examinations will be made free of charge.

"We are especially interested in bringing to the clinic people who have been in close contact with consump-

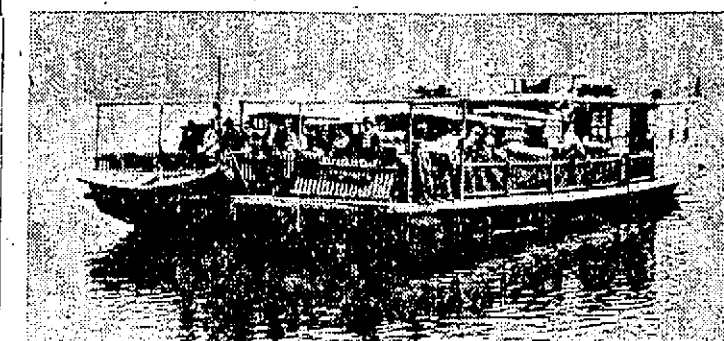

DR. PLEYTE
One of Examining Physicians

tives," said Mr. Werle. "We particularly invite members of families in which there has been tuberculosis to have their lungs examined in order to make sure of their physical condition. What I count as among the most gratifying results of our clinic work throughout the state have been the numerous instances in which we have been able to relieve people of anxiety concerning their health. Many times people who were concerned over the possibility of having contracted tuberculosis, have secured relief from mental strain through an examination in one of our clinics which has shown them to be in good condition."

The clinic in no way makes an effort to supplant the family physician, but rather aims to bring into the community a free diagnostic service to work in conjunction with local doc-

FERRY BUSINESS BOOMING DOWN M'GREGOR WAY AS AUTOISTS CROSS THE RIVER

Steel Hull Auto Ferry at McGregor

M'GREGOR, Iowa.—The motor tourist en route to the Northwest from Milwaukee by way of Madison and Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, now finds the road across northern Iowa from the west bank of the Mississippi at McGregor marked by the same number, "19," as the Milwaukee-Prairie du Chien trail. The marking has just been completed from McGregor to Sioux Falls, South Dakota. It is a broad yellow band on the telephone poles with a black stencil of the map of Iowa and inside of it the inscription "Primary Road" and underneath it the figure "19." The motor tourist from Milwaukee bound for the northwest may thus take up trail 19 at Lake Michigan and follow it for the whole way across Wisconsin and Iowa to the Missouri river.

Back in the fifties and sixties on the completion of the Milwaukee-Prairie du Chien railway, this route across Wisconsin was the great highway of immigration into northern Iowa, southern Minnesota and the Dakotas, and also the artery of shipment of the produce of nearly all the new northwest which didn't go down the Mississippi. Prior to that the old state road from Milwaukee to the mouth of the Wisconsin river just below Prairie du Chien, was filled with prairie schooners bound for the lands west of the Mississippi. As early as 1836 a ferry was run between Prairie du Chien and McGregor. By 1860 several steamers towing many barges were operated between the two towns, and there was no busier crossing on the river.

The motor tourists is finding the route laid out and followed by the settlers, a good one for his purpose also and ferry business is booming into something like that of old times. Now that the highway has the same marking throughout Iowa as in Wisconsin, it will undoubtedly be favored by still greater numbers of motorists.

Five thousand cars were ferried across in 1919. The number this year is considerably in excess, and by the close of the season is certain to be way ahead of last year. A second ferry, the "Wanamingo" owned by Joseph Zimmerman of Prairie du Chien, and built on purpose for transporting autos has been put on between the two towns. It is a self-propelled barge with steel, non-sinkable hull and carries fourteen cars at a trip. Both the Wanamingo and the old ferry, the "Rob Roy" back and forth with loads of cars, giving between them about thirty minute service throughout the day.

It is endorsed by the State Medical society and has a place on the program of the meeting of that organization. In every community in which clinics have been held, local physicians have been in attendance as visitors.

Chest clinics have been conducted by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association for the past year. That they serve a real need is evidenced not only by the large numbers who have appeared for examination but by the efforts of communities which have been visited once to secure a return of the clinic team. In these places many people who did not hear of the clinic in time to attend, or who reached the clinic headquarters too late for examination, have been anxious for another opportunity to learn about their health.

SAFETY STREET CARS ARE EXPECTED HERE LATE IN THE WEEK

Will Greatly Improve the Service in La Crosse Says Vice-President Howard

The safety or so-called one-man street cars ordered by the Wisconsin Railway Light and Power company will arrive in La Crosse the latter part of this week or the first of the coming week, and will immediately be placed in operation on south side lines.

"What kind of vehicles are these safety street cars?" a reporter asked Vice President R. W. Howard, with the purpose of acquainting the traveling public with the new style of carrier.

"These cars were manufactured by the St. Louis Car company and equipped with General Electric company's motors and air compressors," said Mr. Howard. "They are painted our standard colors, interior finished with cherry and are very complete, attractive looking cars. They are the same width as our other cars but are about four feet shorter than our standard single truck cars, over all length being 28 feet. They have the same seating capacity as our standard single truck cars, due to the fact that there are no drop platforms and the floors are carried straight through on one level. As there are no bulk heads in the car, this arrangement permits the installation of seats on the rear platform. The seats are folded up on the front end. These cars are of all steel construction, and have all the latest devices for conveniences and comfort.

"The standard safety cars do not have a sufficient provision for heating to make the cars comfortable in our climate during the winter months, so we have made a number of changes in the La Crosse cars to provide the necessary warmth. We have added double floors, extra insulation in the ceiling and side of the car and have installed twelve electric heaters instead of eight and have provided storm windows throughout. The electric heaters are regulated by an automatic thermostat control which automatically switches the heat on and off to maintain the temperature at the point required by statute. The cars are equipped with eight automatic ventilators which together with the electric heating, will provide a warm, well ventilated car under all conditions.

Seats Fold Back

"The seats fold back like benches in a school room, permitting the passenger on the inside to pass the passenger on the outside of the seat when both are standing, without treading on his or her toes. "Every possible labor saving device has been installed on the cars, so that every operation, with the exception of collecting the fare, is made by air. The car is started and stopped, doors opened and closed merely through the use of the controller handle and one small lever. The mechanism is so interlocked that the doors will not open until the cars come to full stop. The car will not start until the doors are closed, and the power will be shut off, sand applied to the rails, emergency brakes applied, front door opened and rear door latched, if the operator fails to keep a pressure on the controller handle while the car is in motion. This insures safety to passengers and insures safety to the operator and immediately stop if the operator should be suddenly incapacitated and unable to perform his duties.

"Due to the light weight of the car, secured through the use of high grade materials and improved type of construction, very quick acceleration and deceleration is secured. The motors are relatively more powerful than the motors on the old type of car and the safety car is therefore able to make the same number of stops and maintain a much faster schedule than the heavier type of car.

"These cars will be equipped with an improved form of track which will give a much easier riding car than the old type of single trucks.

"Due to the elimination of all manual labor the work will be much easier for the operator than on the old type of car.

"This type of car is now in use in over 100 cities in the United States and there are more than 3,000 in service. When I visited the St. Louis Car company's shops I found the shop full of safety cars under construction and about the only heavy cars being built were for interurban service so it is evident that this car is meeting wide approval in all sections of the country.

For South Side

"These cars are arranged for near side stops, front entrance and exit.

"The south side patrons have some time made the complaint that the south side always received the old cars from the north side line. At this time they will secure brand new cars, designed especially for south side service. No expense has been spared to make these cars complete down to the last detail and if our south side patrons will extend their co-operation in the form of having exact fare ready, enter and leave the cars promptly, they will secure prompt and efficient service and we know that if they do this the new cars will give universal satisfaction."

PROHIBITION THEME

WASHBURN PICTURE

"The Six Best Cellars" Story of
"Private Stock" and Suburban Society

The new Bryant Washburn picture, "The Six Best Cellars" which is coming to the Majestic theater for three days commencing Monday next, is up to the minute in theme. It treats humorously of prohibition. The original story was by Holworthy Hall and Hugh Kalder.

Mr. Washburn has the role of Henry Carpenter, member of an exclusive set of young married couples, whose pride is their well stocked cellars. Henry runs short just on the eve of a big party at which he is host. He receives word from his Aunt Virginia, a staunch prohibitionist, that several cases of liquor have been stored in her cellar by an errant half brother, now departed.

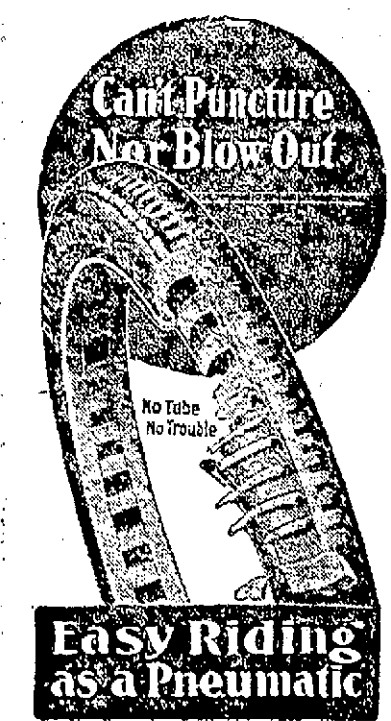

Requested to destroy them, Henry removes the precious stuff to his own house. At the last moment he discovers that the bottles are empty. To save his face at the dinner, he launches into a fiery speech against King Alcohol. The prohibition element in the town welcomes him and wants to run him for congress. But word comes from the aunt of another store of liquor discovered in her cellar. This time the bottles are full. What is Henry to do? Become a social light or go into politics with the anti-booze crowd? The answer is left to the audience.

An excellent supporting cast, headed by Wanda Hawley, appears in the picture, which is a Paramount Artcraft production directed by Donald Crisp. Elmer Harris was the scenarist.

"EVERYWOMAN" A BEAUTY SHOW
AS TO GOWNS, SETS AND WOMEN

BEAUTY is the keynote of "Everywoman," that opens at the La Crosse theater next week. The beauty of investiture, of gowns, of women, of theme and of action.

The settings were designed with an eye to the fanciful, the gorgeous, the striking. While there are moments required by the exigencies of the plot, when the sordid must be presented by way of contrast, in the main the picture is a kaleidoscope of wondrous charm and color.

The great banquet scene wherein Wealth entertains Everywoman and her companions as well as his own satellites, contains a table in the form of a dollar mark. In one of the circles of the "S" is a swimming pool; in the other a dance floor while the company in gorgeous raiment are seated about the curves of the figure. During the sumptuous feast dining girls plunge into the water while lovely dancers trip the light fantastic on the tiny stage.

Court of Love
The Court of King Love introduces the fashions of Louis XV. Herein the characters appear as courtiers and ladies of the court and lovely Everywoman in a magnificent gown meets him whom she takes for love, before a throne that is in itself a creation of unusual beauty.

The gowns worn in the picture were creations of Clare West, of the Lasky costume department, while the bathing and chorus suits were designed and composed of the richest fabrics obtainable.

The Buffaloes of France.
An almost forgotten region lately pointed out by Mr. Samuel Wells is Southern and Midland France, with the desert lands on the Mediterranean. Here the wild horse and a breed of buffaloes are still extant, and great rocks, gorges and caverns are features of the country. The immense caves abound in remains of the stone and bronze ages, while wonderful statuettes hang from the roofs. The buildings show architecture centuries old, especially that of the Roman period.

Battle scenes were won by commissioned officers in the United States army as late as 1872.

VIOLET HEMING
"EVERYWOMAN"

They form a veritable fashion show and many changes are afforded both the principals and the extra people—the latter reaching into the many hundreds.

The production, as directed by George H. Melford, marks an epoch in the artistry and the beauty of screen entertainment, for not alone is the picture physically beautiful, but the story itself possesses a charm and compelling power that is inescapable.

Equally Guilty

In the sweet silence of the moonlight they honeymooned upon the beach.

"Dearest," she murmured, "travelling, 'now that we are married, I have a secret to tell you.'"

"What is it, sweetheart?" he asked softly.

"Can you ever forgive me for deceiving you?" she sobbed. "My left eye is made of glass."

"Never mind, beloved," he whispered, gently "so is the diamond in your engagement ring!"—Ottumwa Courier.

SECRET BETTING

Clandestine Betting in France
Estimated at Ten Million
Francs Daily

PARIS—Clandestine betting would be suppressed in France under bills just introduced in the Chamber of Deputies by Baron Maurice de Rothschild and Leo Bouyssson.

Secret betting in France is estimated by Baron Rothschild to amount to 10,000,000 francs daily.

Under the Rothschild bill establishments where the illegal betting occurred would be closed for certain periods.

Deputy Bouyssson proposes that illegal betting be suppressed by the creation of a state organization of control, and the imposition of a tax at race tracks and other places. A tax of six percent on the estimated 10,000,000 francs illegally bet daily would bring the French government a revenue of 600,000 francs daily, or for the 330 racing days, an annual revenue from this source of 200,000,000 francs.

To this would be added 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 francs from a tax on book betting which would be established and allowed in a special enclosure under the Bouyssson measure. This bill also proposes the creation of free betting offices in Paris and all other cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants.

Burglars Helped Him Out.

For a year D. T. McRoberts, a business man at New Castle, Pa., had not been able to open his safe on account of the combination being lost, and so had been unable to get at papers and other property inside the safe. One night recently burglars broke it open, found no money, left the papers and other property, and Mr. McRoberts felt very much obliged.

NEWFOUNDLAND TRIES
GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF FISHING INDUSTRY

New Legislation Creates Board to Have Full Jurisdiction
Over Fisheries

ST. JOHN'S, N. F.—The colony of Newfoundland has initiated an attempt at government control of the export of cured fish, the most important industry of the island. Over the protest of many of the shipping, fish exporting and other trading concerns, the legislature at its session recently closed enacted several measures to this effect.

The most important of these created a board which will have full jurisdiction, subject only to the governor in council, over the exportation of codfish. Under its terms no one will be permitted to export fish without a license and licenses must comply with regulations to be prescribed by the board with regard to the quality of the fish, the time when it may be shipped, the quantity that may be forwarded to any particular market and the minimum price that may be charged. Monthly statements will be required showing the amount of each grade of fish in the hands of exporters.

Other measures provided for the grading of fish and the inspection of vessels to be used for exporting the product, most of which goes to Mediterranean and South American ports. The sponsors of the legislation said it was designed to improve the quality of the cured fish, to ensure its safe transportation and to prevent glut in foreign markets with consequent price cutting.

Not a Bad Seat In All the 1400 In the One-Floor Auditorium of The Rivoli, Which Opens Sept 19

BY M. R. DOOLITTLE

STATISTICS about theaters are always hard to remember. I don't remember how many flood lamps are going to be used, or have I any idea about the power typhoon ventilating system that changes the air every fifteen minutes, but I do know that the new Rivoli theater is going to be a comfortable place to sit and watch a picture. It will of course be the most beautiful picture palace in La Crosse and I think you will have to travel quite some distance to find its equal. The picture houses that I have had a chance to look at the past few months, both those under construction and those already completed, do not compare with the Rivoli.

All on One Floor

From the outside of the building one cannot tell just how large the auditorium is, but it is large and spacious enough to seat 1,400 people comfortably. This theater unlike most theaters is built all on one floor, and is the very latest design, the last word in theater construction. The beauty of the house all on one floor is, there is no balcony posts to contend with. There is not a poor seat in the house because I have tried them from every angle. The auditorium has been arranged so that the screen may be viewed well, no matter where the visitor is sitting. The seats are wide and comfortable, with the rows not too close together and they look very inviting.

Music is to be the one big feature in the house. It might be well to add that the twenty thousand dollar pipe organ was designed and built according to the directions of Walter Goetzinger, the blind organist, who is well

LINER DE LUXE ON LONG CRUISE TO "TELL THE WORLD" ABOUT U. S. A.

BY HARRY B. HUNT
N. E. A. Staff Correspondent.
WASHINGTON—The former German commerce minister, Kronprinz Wilhelm, which terrorized the seven seas in 1915, will sail from New York early in January on a commerce building cruise of far greater extent than that which she made in German hands in the early days of the war.

On her latest commerce raid she will lay brief siege to every trading port of consequence, all the way around the world, and her conquests are expected to enrich America by hundreds of millions of dollars in new business.

Under Stars and Stripes

She will sail this time, however, not as the Kronprinz Wilhelm, but as the Von Steuben, flying the Stars and Stripes. Her fighting crew will not be master gunners but master salesmen. And whereas her former sailing orders were to grab everything in sight by force for Germany, her new instructions will be to win everything possible for American business by courtesy, diplomacy and merit.

Under the direction of Ferd Ege, a young soldier of fortune from New Jersey, who in various lines of import and export trade has "made" every trading port of consequence in South America, Africa, Asia and Europe, the Von Steuben is to be overhauled and refitted de luxe. Exhibit space will be provided for 700 American industries and state rooms for 700 "commercial representatives." Persons permitted to visit the Von Steuben when she ties up at Buenos Aires, Melbourne, Singapore or Shanghai will do so with a proper sense of distinction bestowed.

Only Elite Allowed

Instead of inviting everybody to please come aboard and see the wonderful products of American manufacture, the bars will be up and only the business elite will be received. Persons coming aboard will be guests. They will be "shown," they will be entertained and dined on board. Orders will be taken only where the visitor insists.

In advance of the Von Steuben will travel an advertising agent who will secure publicity for the coming of the wonderful American ship. Just in advance of her arrival, invitations to the elect official and business personages of each port, or nearby cities, will be put in the mails. Invitations will include wives and daughters, for the trade development cruise is to develop social as well as business understanding.

Candy and Movies

Particular attention will be given to fitting up an elaborate ice cream parlor and candy kitchen. There will also be a great movie auditorium, where motion pictures of American industrial scenes and processes will be shown.

The first cruise of the Von Steuben is expected to last a full year. From New York she will head south down the eastern shore of South America, then eastward to Cape Town, around the cape and up to Madagascar, over to Australia, up the Indian ocean through the East Indian Archipelago to Japan, then to China, Siam, India and via the Red Sea and Suez canal to Mediterranean ports, then France, England and home.

Not only are the exhibits carried expected to impress in a new way the business men and officials of the ports and countries visited, but the Von Steuben herself is counted on to give a new impression of Uncle Sam's new merchant marine.

The Von Steuben is an impressive appearing boat, 625 feet in length, and able to make 20 to 25 knots.

FROZEN IN TEXAS IN MIDSUMMER! FACT!

BY JACK CARBERRY
N. E. A. Staff Correspondent.
SAN ANTONIO, Texas—Frozen in South Texas. In August, with the mercury reaching 92!

Sounds impossible! But Lieutenant Harry L. Weddington with Privates Maddigan, Dowd, Bentley, Cruz, Jewell and Brown, of Kelley field, stand as living proof of its truth.

All seven are under treatment for frozen noses and ears in the United States army hospital here.

It happened like this: Weddington wanted to establish a world passenger carrying altitude record. He selected the six privates—"little ducks," as they are known in army aviation language, for his companions.

In order to cut the weight the men removed their uniforms. Two were sealed in the cockpit in front of the rudder bar, while four were tucked in on the floor of the rear cockpit.

During the climb, which lasted 57 minutes, the plane was covered with ice and the "little ducks" suffered agony from the cold.

Weddington reached 19,071 feet. "I could have gone 1,000 feet higher, but I was afraid my 'little ducks' would freeze to death."

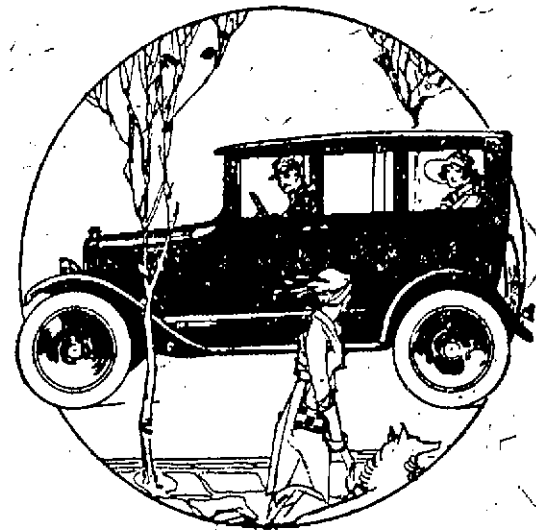

The descent from the "peak" altitude was made in 17 minutes. First cannon balls were solid round stones.

Stop Buying So Much Gas!

The Overland Sedan

*Costs by the Month, Saves by the Mile!
Eats Up Distance, Saves Dollars!*

On a railroad it is the trip and not the ticket that completes the transaction; and it is so with an automobile.

No institution can build up good-will on good-byes.

The Willys-Overland organization is just as interested in Overland owners after they have bought as before they are sold.

Saving you money on the up-keep is just as important as saving you money on the price of the car. And when gasoline began to go up four years ago, word went out to our designers that Overland owners must be protected, and the price of gasoline must be brought down—but not at the price of comfort!—get that, for that was the crux of the problem.

Hypothetically, it was impossible, and yet—

Under the stimulus of a great public need, and spurred on by the pride of a great reputation, the designers of the Overland have Done the Thing that Couldn't be Done! — they have unraveled still another insoluble secret of mechanics, by creating that marvel of mechanism, the new Suspension Triplex Spring, permitting the use of light alloy steels for economy, and acting as a pneumatic buffer between the road and you!

What the new Overland car and its remarkable improvements cost to create we shall never know. But we do know that it cost $6,000,000 to get ready to incorporate them into the new Overland car, and that the Overland car was a great car before these improvements were initiated and adopted.

So it seems a fair conclusion: That an institution that will voluntarily upset the ramifications of one of the greatest automobile manufacturing plants in the world, in order to reduce the gasoline bills of Overland owners, justifies the past, the future, and the immediate confidence of the American people.

COACH KEELER TO HAVE FEW MEMBERS OF 1919 TEAM BACK

Wealth of Material from Last Year Expected to Show up in Good Form

1920 LINE EXPECTED TO BE HEAVIER THAN LAST YEAR'S

Initial Game is Scheduled With St. Thomas at St. Paul

When the La Crosse normal football squad reports for the initial practice at Normal field in a few weeks, Coach Keeler will find but few of the men that brought the banner to the local school last year back in the maroon and gray uniform. That the absence of Keels, Roellig, Berg, Gibson, Howe, R. Lippe, O. Rippe, Jessup and Skemp will be felt, is certain. Nevertheless, Coach Keeler has a wealth of material in the men that fought the varsity team and whipped them into championship caliber on the gridiron last year. With the exception of Captain-elect Schindler, Regal, Yaezer and Miller, members of the varsity squad during last season, and who will not doubt be found in their respective 1919 positions at the sound of the whistle, the 1920 machine will be made up of the well seasoned second team of last year.

Regardless of the fact that the men comprising the heavy line in the 1919 team have left the school, Coach Keeler states that the new line will be heavier than last year's. Developing a couple of ends, to replace the Rippe brothers, will be one of the chief difficulties of Coach Keeler at the outset of the season. Kevin, who worked at the center position last year, looks good for that honor in the absence of "Sonny" Berg, and Schult, famous at the tackle position will be given an opportunity this year. "Sawed" Dahlgren, one time captain of the high school team here, and well known as an aggressive man on the gridiron, will be at the disposal of Coach Keeler when the squad reports. "Fat" Oyen, another high school star of a few years since, will be seen in the maroon and gray jersey this fall. Among other stalwart contenders who are expected to figure in the final make-up are McCormick, Bonilla, Jones, two Glassbrenners and Luras. When the team journeys to St. Paul on October 2 for the initial game of the season with the St. Thomas aggregation, Coach Keeler expresses confidence in possessing a team that will preserve the record of 1919 championship squad. The team will also meet Whitewater, Milwaukee, River Falls, Platteville, Oshkosh and St. Mary's this year and negotiations, in an endeavor to meet other small colleges, are being made.

WATCHIN' THE CLOUDS

Football is starting its annual task of crowding baseball from the headlines.

Progress will be slow in the face of the thrilling major league races, but lovers of the gridiron game will be content to wait the ending of the world's series before claiming the full glory of the sport page and holding it until December. The first of September finds the season of preparation in under way. Preliminary practice, such as has been conducted by Prof. Spence for the "warming up" of the local high school men during the past week, is in vogue at numerous high schools and university camps throughout the country.

Nearly fifty college games are scheduled for the final week-end in September. Then the grand opening splash is due on the first two days in October, when more than one hundred contests of the collegiate class will be played, together with minor gridiron clashes too numerous to count.

The high cost of football equipment has failed to be a hindrance to the increasing number of games played each year. Inability of the sporting goods houses to furnish enough equipment has been the main difficulty in the past. First-class footballs, costing five and six dollars a few years ago, are now selling for twelve dollars. When a university warrior steps on the field fully equipped with the best grade of jersey, headgear, pants, pads, stockings and shoes the retail outlay approaches seventy dollars. When it is realized that squads of one hundred members are not uncommon, and that personal equipment is but part of the cost, some idea of the expense of modern football may be gained.

There seems to be more than just schoolboyish complaints of highly trained athletes back of the "holler" that Yank Olympians have sent back on the treatment accorded them on their trip and stay abroad. The United States Olympic committee is decidedly on the par right now, and we'll hear more about the rumpus when the boys get home.

Sleeping in the "Glory Hole," or below the waterline, on the Princess Matolka, enroute over caused the first clash to come between the team and the committee.

The boys didn't like the school house in which they were quartered after arriving in Belgium, which was pretty much like army life, according to reports coming back from there. The manner of serving "chow" was also criticized. Some write that they are half starved and broke. Others say it is no honor to be a member of the United States team, even though it won the Olympiad.

These complaints may be exaggerated to some degree. They most likely are. Yet some of the wheels of the Olympic committee seemed to have slipped in planning to make the boys comfortable on their trip abroad. It would seem that American athletes should have been given the ordinary care and comforts on such a trip.

BITTER WRANGLE DEVELOPES OVER MATCH REFEREE

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 4.—A bitter wrangle developed tonight over the selection of a referee for the ten-round fight between Jack Dempsey and Billy Miske on Monday afternoon, after Chairman Bigger, of the Michigan Boxing commission, refused to issue a license to Jim Dougherty of Philadelphia, who Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, wanted as third man in the ring.

Bigger held several conferences with Kearns, Jack Reddy, Miske's manager, and Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter, but there was no indication of when the matter would be settled. Bigger offered a list of eleven ring officials from which he said a selection could be made. The list included Ed Smith, of Chicago, and Matt Hinkle, of Cleveland, the only two referees living outside the state who hold Michigan licenses.

TRIBUNE TO GET FIGHT BULLETINS MONDAY AFTERNOON

Although the Monday edition of the Tribune and Leader-Press will go to press at noon, the offices of this newspaper will be kept open during the afternoon for the purpose of receiving returns on the Dempsey-Miske championship title match over the wires of the Associated Press. Bulletins will be posted.

NELSON TEAM MEETS GENOA BALL CLUB HERE LABOR DAY

Down-River Team Comes Here With Record of One Defeat this Season

The management of the Nelson Clothing company baseball team has arranged for what is thought to be the hardest game of the season on Labor day when the Genoa aggregation, managed by Fay Copsey, well known in La Crosse, comes here for the first match with the local team. The season to date has been a record-breaker for the Genoa team, having escaped with but one defeat during the year. The Lansing club, which is reported to have a fast team this year, were defeated by Genoa on a muddy field last Sunday by a score of 7 to 3.

According to reports circulated by the down river management, they are coming here on Labor day with the idea of preserving their present record. At any rate the local team looking forward to an interesting match. Copsey, first baseman for the Genoaans, was formerly a pitcher with the La Crosse Athletics, and at one time played with the Nelson team. Theis, who represents the Genoaans on the mound, is a Minneapolis man and in combination with Angell, behind the bat, are reported to be dangerous.

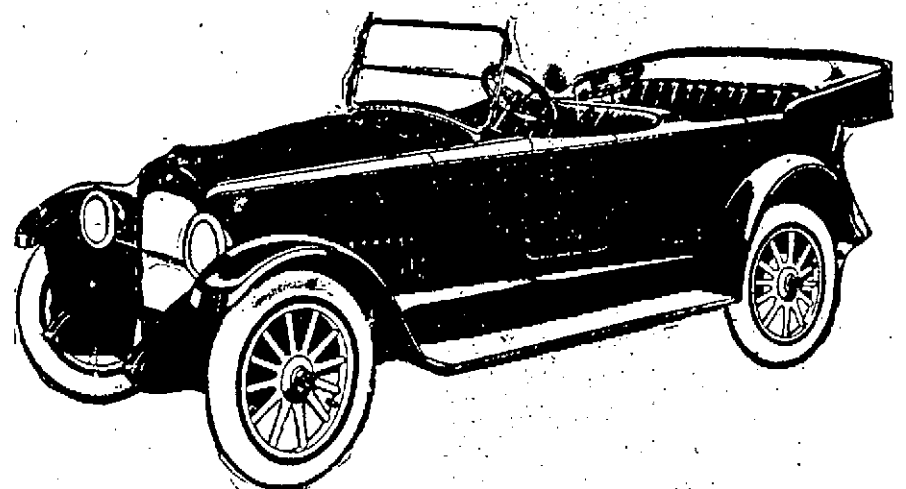

HIRE SLUGGER JOE CHICAGO.—Sluggert, Joe Jackson has signed a new contract. It's not with Kid Gleason, but with St. Petersburg (Fla.) winter baseball promoters. Joe will manage a club there this winter.

GOSH! THEY TRAVEL. ST. PAUL.—Faus in St. Paul have learned to say those sweet words, "Won again," so often that they're quit reading box scores. The Saints are away to the good in a one-sided race.

MOSTLY IRON. WICHITA FALLS, Texas.—James Zion is being called the Iron Man since he pitched a no-hit no-run game against Houston recently in the first end of a double-header and then allowed but three bingles in the second.

BULLDOGS PREPARE. CANTON.—Jim Thorpe, who made Canton the hotbed of professional football, has his Bulldogs about in line. Grigg of Texas will return as quarterback. He's a darp.

The date palm is said to bear fruit for one or two centuries.

U. S. Senator Irvine L. Lenroot

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR RENOMINATION

For twenty years a leading fighting
Progressive Republican

LEGISLATIVE EXPERIENCE

Senator Lenroot was a member of our State Legislature for six years, during four of which he was speaker of the Assembly. During those years our Wisconsin laws for regulation and control of the railroads and the reform of our election system were passed.

He then became a member of Congress and after 9 years' service was two years ago promoted to the Senate. Throughout his public life he has been a consistent, faithful Progressive Republican, working always for the best interests of the people as a whole.

LABOR LEGISLATION

His attitude toward labor has always been fair. The American Federation of Labor which keeps a record of the votes upon labor bills gives him the record of 18 favorable votes out of a total of 43. The Railway Brotherhoods, which also keeps a record of the votes of congressmen upon bills of interest to railway men, gives him a record of 24 favorable votes out of a total of 27.

Can you find a man with a better record? Do you want to substitute for him a man WITHOUT A RECORD?

THE ESCH-CUMMINS RAILROAD LAW

Senator Lenroot voted for this law and stands by it. It has been misrepresented by candidates for office who are trying to obtain votes by such misrepresentations. The law does not guarantee any profits to the railroads after September 1st, 1920, and is the best railroad law that Congress has ever enacted. Do not be misled by any candidate for office who tells you otherwise. Look up the law for yourself and see what its provisions are. Above all do not believe that a man who has been honest and faithful for twenty years has suddenly become dishonest and crooked.

Select your senator with the same care that you would select your doctor. You would not think of discharging a doctor who had served you faithfully and well for many years and substituting a new inexperienced man merely because he made glowing promises. For senator you want a man who has had experience in public affairs, who has done something besides make promises. You have such a man in Senator Lenroot. He has served you well; re-elect him.

TO WOMEN VOTERS

Senator Lenroot has been an advocate of woman suffrage for twenty years. He is no new untried convert; he has a record. His work and his vote in Congress helped when help was needed.

Senator Lenroot drew the National Child Labor Law, which Congress passed and which is now in force. In the State Legislature and in the National congress he has always supported legislation for the protection of women and children and the home.
